

OVATION TO GOV. WALSH
AT DEMOCRATIC RALLYOver 5000 Heard Speakers at City Hall—Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald
and Gov. Walsh Heard

One of the largest and most remarkable rallies ever held in this city was that of last night at city hall in connection with the interest of Governor Walsh. At no time from 8 o'clock to midnight was the crowd less than 5000 and there were times when it looked as though 7000 or 8000 persons were packed into space in front of the municipal building. It was a wonderful rally in every respect, and notable not only for numbers but for enthusiasm. For four hours the citizens of Lowell waited cheerfully, and during that period the speeches of local demagogues and speakers of the state campaign were received with an enthusiasm that grew as the evening advanced. This spirit of enthusiasm and loyalty culminated in a reception to Governor Walsh which will be remembered by all present. As the governor remarked, it was a wonderful demonstration which showed that he possessed something greater than any office.

HESPERIAN TORPEDOED

Navy Dept. Finds That Fragment
Found on Liner Was Part of a Torpedo

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Secretary Lansing announced today that the navy department had indicated that the fragment of the engine of war which sank the Allan liner Hesperian was a part of a torpedo. The German government has persistently denied that the Hesperian was torpedoed. In the opinion of United States naval experts the fragment could not have been a part of a marine engine. The secretary said the result of the navy department's investigation would immediately be communicated either to the German government directly or to Ambassador Bernstorff.

The secretary volunteered no information regarding what form the communication to the German government might take.

Germany has made to the United States a qualified disclaimer of responsibility for the sinking of the Hesperian. In a note to Ambassador Gerard on Sept. 14, the foreign office said that on the face of the evidence then at hand Germany was satisfied that the Hesperian was not sunk by a German submarine.

The fragment of metal examined by the navy department experts was said to have been picked from the deck of the Hesperian after the explosion. The Hesperian sank early in September off the Irish coast while making her way to port after being disabled by the explosion. The fragment was made of polished steel, and was about nine inches long. It was sent to the state department by the American embassy at London.

The state department heretofore had been in doubt regarding the direct cause of the sinking of the Hesperian. A number of affidavits from the passengers and officers of the ship have been received by the state department. The signers swore that the ship had been torpedoed. The fragment of metal was sent along as proof that the statements in the affidavits were true.

The Hesperian was declared to have been in the regular passenger service. The state department has been informed there were no troops aboard at the time of the sinking, but some wounded Canadian soldiers were traveling on individual tickets as passengers. Two Americans were passengers.

The position of the United States has been to take no steps to question the good faith of Germany's assurance, unless it was shown clearly that the sinking of the Hesperian was in violation of them. The president and Secretary Lansing have been reluctant to believe that the Hesperian was sunk deliberately without valid excuse. Just what weight the report made by the navy department to Secretary Lansing will have could not be definitely ascertained.

RUSSIAN FORCES SAIL
FOR BULGARIAN COASTFrench Make Further Gains in West—
Montenegrins Take the Offensive
Against Austrians Near the Serbian
Border — Position of Serbia More
Desperate—Nish Threatened

Large Russian forces are to attempt a landing on the Bulgarian Black sea coast, according to advices received in Berlin, which hints that large contingents on transports conveyed by a strong squadron have sailed from Odessa and Sebastopol.

Capture of Pilot

Details of the capture of the Serbian stronghold of Piro, which had been the Bulgarian path to Nish, are telegraphed from Sofia. Some doubt has existed as to whether the Bulgarians had completed their occupation of the place. Definite announcement of the capture is carried in the current statement by the Vienna war office.

French Make Gains

The French have made further gains in the Artois region, occupying a section of German trenches at Bois-an-Hache. They repulsed a German attack near Hill No. 110, southeast of Souchez. These announcements are made in today's official statement from Paris.

German Counter Attack Repulsed

Four violent counter attacks by Germans near the position of "La Courtine" in the Champagne where the French made gains yesterday, are declared to have been completely repulsed and all the French gains retained.

On Gallipoli Peninsula

There has been heavy artillery play on the Gallipoli peninsula. Turkish trenches near the tip of the peninsula were destroyed by allied fire and Turkish guns blew up an ammunition storehouse of the expeditionary force, an official Turkish statement says.

Montenegrins Take Offensive

Montenegrin troops have taken the offensive against the Austrians in Bosnia, near the Serbian border, and have inflicted large losses, according to a statement issued by the Montenegrin legation in Paris. An important battle began south of Visegrad Thursday the result of which is not yet known.

Greece Watching Rumors

Athens, which hears that the negotiations which the entente powers are conducting to obtain the aid of Rumania are progressing favorably, for the allies, replying that Greece is closely watching the course of events at Bucharest the outcome of which is anxiously awaited in the Greek capital.

New Briand Cabinet

The members of the new Briand cabinet in France were presented to President Poincare today and the first formal meeting of the cabinet was held.

Some plan for central military control is being considered by the entente allies, it is believed, in London. General Joffre's visit to the British capital is believed there to be incident to discussion of such a plan.

POSITION OF SERBIA MORE DESPERATE—NISH IS THREATENED

LONDON, Oct. 30, 11:46 a. m.—The position of Serbia is becoming more desperate daily. Nish is threatened by the Bulgarians, while the Austrians and Germans are gradually opening the way toward the great Serbian arsenal at Kruguevatz. Rome reports that the Serbian capital has been removed "to a certain point."

Serbians in Retreat

According to the latest official reports from Sofia, the Serbians are in retreat in a westerly direction all along the Bulgarian front. Unofficial despatches state that a Bulgarian officer commanding an advance patrol has gained with the Austro-German staff. The Bulgarians assert that they are in possession of Negotin, Drza Palanka, Zafcar, Knjazevatz, and several villages in the Timok valley which gives them a strategic position of primary importance. The complete capture of Piro is not claimed by the war office at Sofia, which says the Bulgarian troops, after storming the southern fortifications, penetrated the town, where night put an end to the fighting.

French Hold Strumitsa

With the exception of the unofficial report that the French are now firmly in possession of Strumitsa, no news has been received concerning the military movements of the entente allies in the Balkans.

Rumors Off For Bulgarian Coast

From Bulgarian sources admissions have been received that the reports recently bombarded suffered severely. A Bucharest despatch says that Russian troops have set sail from Odessa and Sebastopol for the Bulgarian coast.

AN IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

Two Bishops and Many Priests
Attend the Funeral of Rev.
George A. Costello

With solemn and most impressive requiem services participated in by several prelates and nearly 100 clergymen from different parts of the commonwealth, the funeral of Rev. George A. Costello, one of the younger and universally beloved pastors of the diocese, took place this morning. The services were held at the church of the Immaculate Conception, in this city, before the altar of which the deceased had received the inspiration of his vocation, and within the shadow of the school at which he had received his first instruction in the faith for which he had labored so zealously and so well.

Since his death until an early hour this morning, the remains had rested at the home of his sisters, to whom he was devoted, at the Costello home, 12 N. Main street, where they were viewed by a host of sorrowing friends including many among whom he had labored in Brookline, Sharon and Lexington. Shortly before 9 o'clock the body was taken to the church, where it lay in state until the hour of the funeral. The casket was placed in the center aisle in front of the main altar, the deceased robed in full vestments and clasping the chalice. The remains were escorted from the house to the church and subsequently to the cemetery by a guard of honor consisting of former parishioners from Lexington, representing the Knights of Columbus and the Holy Name society, of St. Bridget's church and including Rev. E. J. Burke, Grand Knight Charles Callahan and Messrs. P. J. Maguire, P. Dacey, J. E. Morrissey, J. J. McCarthy, Dr. J. Walsh, D. Henchey, John Connor, T. Grein, C. Shay, E. Pero, D. Collins, J. McKernan, J. Leary, T. Breslin, and C. Lafranks.

During the hour that the body lay in state hundreds availed themselves of the opportunity to view the remains for the last time. At 9 o'clock the Oblate Fathers of the different local churches conducted the solemn office for the dead. The service was presided over by Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O.M.I. provincial, and the cantors were Rev. W. J. Stanton, O.M.I. and Rev. James J. McCartin, O.M.I.

As a requiem for the funeral service approached the great edifice filled rapidly and in the congregation every walk of life was represented. The city of Lowell was represented by Mayor Murphy and the judiciary by Judge McLaughlin of the superior court, while among those who offered their prayers were the Sisters of Charity, of St. John's hospital; the Sisters of Charity of St. Peter's orphanage and the Gray Nuns of the Immaculate Conception school, the former teachers of the deceased. Over 200 parishioners of the deceased from Lexington came to Lowell by special

OF SCHOOL FIRE RISKSCommissioner Carmichael Makes
Some Good Suggestions for Protection of Schools

Since the Peabody tragedy in which a score or more children were burned or trampled to death in a burning schoolhouse, great interest has been manifested as to the condition of schoolhouses in Lowell as regards safety from fire. So far as can be learned from building inspectors and other officials, conditions here are such as to satisfy the state police. The fact that the inspectors are satisfied seems to satisfy others that the schoolhouses are all right.

There are only three or four of the public schoolhouses in Lowell that can boast of fire escapes and these include the High, Washington and Varum schools. There is also a sort of makeshift fire escape on the rear of the Green school. The fact remains, however, that there are fewer children on the third floors of the public schools than heretofore, as classes on the third floor, in some instances, notably that of the Edson school, have been abandoned. The third floor of the Edson school was given up at the suggestion of Supt. Molloy, who claimed that the lives of the children would be in jeopardy there in case of fire. The third floors of the vocational schools for girls and boys are also being used, but the school committees are not at all satisfied with conditions there. The schools referred to are the Morrill and Old Bartlett.

Commissioner Carmichael discussed schoolhouses today and said that in his opinion the fire drill is a very important thing, but he thinks it is not being successfully operated here. The commissioner thinks that the doors to schoolhouses can be very much improved. "I believe," said the commissioner, "that the doors should open automatically just as soon as the alarm for a fire drill is sounded. I also think that there ought not to be any regularity as to the sounding of the fire drill alarm. I would suggest that the chief of the fire department should have the right to go to any of the schools personally and sound the alarm. He knows more about fire drills than the teachers and he could instruct the children if necessary."

"I presume that the schoolhouses in Lowell are as safe as elsewhere. The panic was the cause of the trouble in Peabody. If the children had gone out without getting excited they would have been all right. But the deadly confusion took place and I really think that the same would have been avoided if the doors had been swung wide open. I think that to insure absolute safety, schoolhouses ought not to be more than two stories in height. It would require more land and would require more money to build one-story schoolhouses, but money is not to be considered where human lives are at stake."

The story was told at city hall today, and at the office of Commissioner Carmichael, that upon learning of the tragedy enacted in the schoolhouse in Peabody, Principal Irish of the Lowell high school sounded the alarm for the fire drill and that considerable confusion was experienced, not with the scholars but with the teachers.

Francis Connor, inspector of buildings, said that all of the grammar schools are all right; that every inch of the law relative to fire has been lived up to. He said, however, that fire escapes ordered by the state police had not been installed because the department hasn't the money with which to do the work. "We asked for $5500 for schoolhouse work that included fire escapes and the council allowed us only $2000."

Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, gave his opinion that Lowell schools are probably comparable quite favorably with the schools of other cities so far as safety in case of fire is concerned. "It makes no matter," said the superintendent, "what the law is and no matter what the interpretation may be put upon it, there should be no fixture of any description in a school building that would lock a school door from the inside."

"The order to be followed in clearing a school for fire drill should be posted in each school building showing how any exit or all exits are to be used and the place at such a time for every teacher and janitor in the building."

HIS DAUGHTER AND HIS WIFE

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 30.—William Cameron, mail carrier between Peabody and Carey, Idaho, shot and killed his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Adamson; his brother-in-law, James Adamson, his daughter, aged 18 months, and his wife and finished his work by shooting himself in the head at Carey last night. Cameron was still alive at last reports but there was no prospect for his recovery. Cameron's wife started proceedings for divorce recently.

OVATION TO GOV. WALSH

the love of the people of Massachusetts.

It was originally planned to have a local committee meet some of the principal speakers at the Richardson hotel, but in the rush of the final campaign rallies, it was impossible to arrange the program with any degree of certainty. The speakers of last night came from different cities and towns and they came at different times so that it was not possible to have a formal parade or reception. A few of the early evening speakers went directly to city hall, and shortly after 8 p. m. the local democratic committee including Mayor Murphy, Humphrey O'Sullivan, D. J. Donahue, Joseph P. Donohue, Assistant District Attorney Robert J. Crowley, Postmaster John F. Meehan, J. Joseph O'Connor, Cornelius P. Cronin and others, drove from the depot to city hall where a vast concourse was assembled. Monument square was literally packed with people and the crowd kept growing larger and larger until the speakers on city hall steps declared they had never seen anything to approach it at a political rally in Lowell.

Edward T. Barry

Edward T. Barry, Esq., candidate for lieutenant governor, was the first speaker to arrive. He spoke briefly, attaching the record of Calvin Coolidge, his opponent, and paying a high tribute to the administration of President Wilson and Gov. Walsh. Mr. Barry proved a very entertaining speaker, driving his arguments home pointedly and in a brief review sketching the achievements of the democrats in spite of republican opposition in and out of the legislature. He was followed by Michael M. O'Connor, of Cambridge, candidate for county commissioner, who made a strong address in praise of the principles of the democratic party, pleading for the support of the people next Tuesday and expressing his confidence that the people would reward merit and distinguished service.

The Speakers

Before the arrival of Governor Walsh, which was not until after 11.30 p. m. the various speakers, in their respective order were: Joseph P. Donohue, Mayor Murphy, chairman of the rally, Hon. Frederick W. Mansfield, former state treasurer, Hon. John F. Meehan, Humphrey O'Sullivan, D. J. Donahue, Esq., Hon. John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, Hon. Joseph J. Donahue, candidate for Atty. Gen. Joseph H. McNally, candidate for the executive council, Hon. Robert J. Crowley and Judge Riley of Malden.

Ovation to Governor

Judge Riley was speaking when Governor Walsh's auto drove up. Immediately the word passed through the crowd which was now most enthusiastic and very expectant. As Governor Walsh stepped from his auto Judge Riley called for three cheers. The response was such as to gladden the heart of the governor for the thousands present united in cheer after Governor Walsh stepped from his auto Judge Riley called for three cheers. cheers that greeted any strong declaration and by the cheer calls of individuals. The magnetism and popularity of Governor Walsh were never better displayed than in this outdoor rally which kept thousands patient and expectant until midnight. At the close of the address Governor Walsh was again cheered many times, and he went on his way knowing that Lowell will stand by him next Tuesday.

Gov. Walsh's Address

Gov. Walsh spoke in part as follows: "This is indeed a wonderful demonstration and I am deeply moved. When thousands stay from their homes until this late hour to see their governor, what does it mean? It means that victory is in the air, that the people are aroused as never before to stamp out the forces and influences that have been robbing them and neglecting their best interests. It means that the man who works loyalty and faithfully and fights wealth and corporate interests in behalf of the people can get more than office; he can get the love and affection of the great masses of the common people."

"I have resisted and fought for you, the telephone companies, the railroads, the insurance companies, the lighting companies, and the public realizes what a calamity it would be to drive out the free voice of the people from the government of Massachusetts. We'll win because we're right, despite the oligarchy of wealth and selfish, powerful private interests. We are fighting against the dollars of our opponents, but we will fight from our trenches with the ballot of Massachusetts citizenship."

"I would say to McCall: 'You are not running for president, nor for congress; you are running for governor. You are not expected to change the tariff or the currency bill or the laws in Europe or Mexico.' Yet, when I ask Mr. McCall what he pledges himself to do if elected, he begins to talk about the war in Europe.

"Why does he not take a stand on the taxation problem? Here tonight I declare to the people that I shall veto any law to give a lower rate on stocks and bonds unless all stockholders will take an oath how much stocks and bonds they've got."

"There will be no more important problem before the next legislature than that of taxation reform. If the constitutional amendment upon the ballot in this election is approved it will enable the legislature, if controlled by the republican reactionaries as was the last legislature, to legalize tax dodging and to impose additional burdens upon the rent payer, the shop-keeper and the home owner who are now bearing an unjust proportion of the expenses of government."

"I have declared before the people in every part of the state that I shall veto any change in the taxation system unless compulsory returns are provided which would require the tax-dodgers to reveal under oath their hidden wealth."

"But where does Mr. McCall stand? Will he favor compulsory returns? Why is he silent? What power compels his silence?"

"With this issue before the people, it is easy to understand how the large republican campaign fund has been collected. The barrel has already been opened. Hundreds of automobiles are moving across the state in 'carnival processions.' Torchlight parades are being organized by paid workers in cities and towns. Money is being poured out as never before."

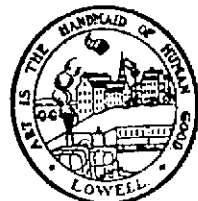

"But I remind these gentlemen of the republican machine that next Tuesday we are to have an election and not an auction."

"Mr. McCall is innocently asking what is an 'invisible government.' I would suggest to him that he read the reports of the trial of the New Haven directors now being published in the daily papers with the story of the bribery of the legislators and the purchase of reactionary newspaper support."

"If he desires other information he should read the evidence in the Boston & Maine investigation taken before the public service commission of New Hampshire about a month ago."

"And if he wants more particular information as to its activities in Massachusetts I would refer him to the evidence in the 'special expenses' investigation before our own public service commission, which tells the story of thousands of dollars used directly and indirectly to influence legislation in this commonwealth."

"What about the increase in car fares? So far as the influence of my office goes, there will be no increase in rates until all the water is wrung out of the stock."

Governor Walsh also reviewed his legislation in the interest of the workman, his provision for widows and orphans, his bill for popular education under the auspices of the state, and he challenged Mr. McCall to decide whether he is in favor of such legislation or opposed. In conclusion he said: "The people know my record and I'm going to win because they know I have been loyal. They will show their gratitude; they will refuse to go back to government by the few. I would say to you, my friends, that the nation may know that in Massachusetts we will have won a great victory for democracy."

At the close of his address he was charged again and again and hundreds of people came to shake hands with him. It was well after midnight when the thousands assembled began to disperse, and it was the opinion of all that it was the best rally ever.

Frederick W. Mansfield

Hon. Frederick W. Mansfield, former state treasurer, was the first speaker. He declared that in all probability half or one-third of the people present were republicans and progressives, and he was sorry, he said, that all were not republicans. He then said that he would not talk as a member of a party and he would not make a plea for any party but would talk about the rights of man and plead for the candidate who has shown the greatest interest in human rights and the happiness of the people. "I am attorney for the American Federation of Labor," he said, "and I know in what party the ordinary citizens gets a fair show. The democratic party is the party of the people; the republican party is the party of the rich man, the party of the reactionary in politics, the party of special privilege. This year the republican party has thrown out half for the progressive but their pretended progress is forced on them by the democratic party as a ruse to get votes. I speak very especially to the progressives for I believe the definition of a progressive as given by a friend, 'A progressive is a democrat who is ashamed to own up to it. The progressives never had a plank that they did not steal from the democratic party, or as somebody said once: "Bryan went swimming and Roosevelt stole his clothes." Mr. Mansfield then quoted from the records of Governors Draper and Bates contrasting such records with those of Governor Russell and Governor Walsh. He derided the great work of our present governor as being essentially humanitarian, and told the people that in voting for Governor Walsh next Tuesday they will vote for themselves and their own best interests. He spoke, in this connection, of the governor's fight for taxation reform, saying that a wonderful tribute and asking for his sweeping re-election."

Postmaster Meehan

Hon. John H. Meehan spoke in brief, making a strong plea for the policies of Governor Walsh, and telling from experience of the pernicious spirit of the republican legislature in all relating to popular rights."

Humphrey O'Sullivan

Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan made a rousing speech in which he described Mr. McCall as "a reactionary of the old type," basing his conviction on McCall's record. He told of the recent visit of Senator Gore of Oklahoma and the tribute which the distinguished statesman paid to the Wilson administration. He also went into a detailed analysis of some of the more important national measures, notably the currency bill. In closing he drew a bright picture of the future, saying "the resources of our country are limitless" and comparing the American situation with that of Europe."

Daniel J. Donahue

Daniel J. Donahue made a characteristic speech full of facts and witty allusions. He punctured the calumnious predictions of the republicans saying that prosperity is due more to skilled labor than to the tariff and ridiculing the recent speech of Senator Harding of Ohio, who at the republican rally told a story of a certain Paris hat which gave Mr. Donahue a fine campaign argument for the democratic party."

In closing Mr. Donahue paid a warm tribute to Governor Walsh and the democratic party "which has worked for the uplift of the people."

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald

As Mr. Donahue concluded his address there was great commotion at the outskirts of the crowd and soon the cries of "Fit" and "Fitzgerald" were heard. The only original John F. had arrived and the crowd was exultant. In a short time they were treated to a very eloquent address which, in part, follows:

"This wonderful crowd which I see here tonight is a splendid endorsement of the administration of your present governor and your next governor—David L. Walsh. He has been the people's governor in every proper sense of the word. In opposition to him is Mr. McCall, who voted for the tariff bill that President Taft signed, only to have it repealed and the signing of which more than anything else defeated Mr. Taft overwhelmingly. The candidate of the republican party voted for the bill in all its stages, taking orders from the bankers and the extreme protectionists. He is not the friend of the ordinary citizen and if elected governor, he will take his orders from the corporate interests instead of from the people as Governor Walsh has done."

Mr. Fitzgerald here sketched the story of Roosevelt's campaign contributions from Morgan, Harriman & Co. as an illustration, and played in contrast the career of President Wilson. He went into the early career of Governor Walsh to prove that the governor knows the wants and the aspirations of the common people, and he paid an extraordinary tribute to the personality of the governor. "His heart is in humanity," said the speaker, "and he is the people's champion at the state house. He has given himself to your interests and to your welfare as has no other man in my memory. He is an expression of the people of Lowell, and Lowell should stand by him." In closing, Mr. Fitzgerald defended the administration of President Wilson, drawing a graphic picture of the war in the old world, and bringing it home to his hearers by an imaginary picture of what would have happened here if we had a different president."

Joseph J. Donahue

Joseph J. Donahue, candidate for attorney general, a young man of a strong and magnetic personality, made a very forcible address in which he pleaded for the entire state ticket. "This wonderful ovation," he said, "shows that not only Walsh but the entire ticket will be elected. This is as it ought to be, for the democratic party is liberal and the republican party is conservative. If you favor progress and liberal principles, vote for the democracy from Governor Walsh down to your local representatives." He gave an exhaustive review of the railroad situation and complimented the governor on his handling of it."

Joseph H. McNally

Joseph H. McNally, candidate for the executive council, described the present campaign as the reactionary against the progressive. He gave a very comprehensive account of the governor's record with special reference to the railroad legislation, the bill for popular education and the Ellis milk bill, declaring that the governor has been most particular to keep out false measures which masquerade in a plausible show of reform."

Robert J. Crowley

Robert J. Crowley stirred the crowd up to an enthusiastic spirit in his opening remarks which were most complimentary to the governor. He also dealt with the details of the state administration, mentioning many incidents from his personal experience to prove that Governor Walsh has been the people's champion."

Judge Riley

Hon. Thomas J. Riley of Malden proved once again the popular speaker par excellence, earning the honors of the preliminary period with ex-Mayor Fitzgerald. In his vigorous and highly humorous fashion he attacked the opposition, sending his magnificent voice out over the crowd with apparent ease. Shift after shift of pointed sarcasm were aimed at the republican ranks, and many personal reminiscences of Judge Riley were quoted to prove the calibre of the man who opposes Governor Walsh. He declared that Calvin Coolidge has no human heart, having instead a heart made from a steel rail, all connected up with telephones and telegraph wires, and that the only way he likes the human voice is over the phone or in cipher. He also sketched the watchful waiting period of Locke, Crane and the other republican extremists after the progressive wave, and said that the old order now thinks it safe to venture out again. He aroused great laughter when he explained how the republicans dug out the old leaders who know what one bell, two bells and the other signals stand for."

"Why," said Judge Riley, "the republican legislature is not yet elected, but all the committees are already picked out. Oh, yes! they know who is going to be on the railroad committee, and the telephone committee and all the committees. They have sent word to the Bay State railroad that it can have the fare and to the telephone company that there will be no reorganization. The public lighting committees have been approached and every interest that has a selfish reason to watch elections. You people will get a great show if the republicans get back, led by the old fellows that know the one bell and the two bells."

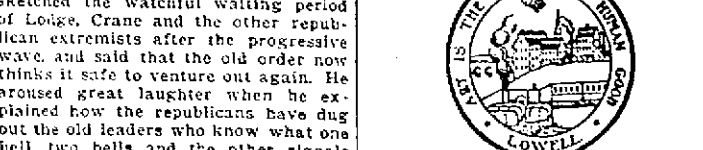

"I have been through this entire campaign with Governor Walsh, and I have never seen anything like the ovation he has received. Without money—for he has a campaign fund of about $120,000 to the $100,000 back of McCall, who is supported by wealth and selfish organization—and without a machine, he has gone to the people and they are with him. Stand by Governor Walsh—the man who has stood by you and who will stand by you in the future as in the past."

For the first time in the history of New York women recently were allowed to cast the vote and over 100,000 new electors were added to the voting lists.

Highway Commission Counting Autos—Annexation Movement Starting Again

The state highway commission is gathering valuable data concerning the wear and tear of the state highway throughout the county and for some time past over 20 men and women have been employed in counting the number of automobiles that go by a certain point on each road, and the employee is requested in his or her report to give full information as to whether or not the auto that is registered is a touring car, a truck, business vehicle or runabout.

On account of the heavy rains during last summer, the roads are well supplied with water and it is said that there is a lack of interest in the highway commission's work. The number of automobiles that go by a certain point on each road, and the employee is requested in his or her report to give full information as to whether or not the auto that is registered is a touring car, a truck, business vehicle or runabout.

Business at the Merrimack Woolen mill at Navy Yard is rushing and double shifts have been running for some time past. The weaving departments especially are being rushed and the looms are kept busy night and day. The company is now filling a large order for coverings for a foreign country and it is expected before this order is completed more will be received.

Conditions are also very good at the Beaver Brook mill and some of the departments are kept running overtime. There is a large complement of help at work and future conditions are very bright.

A delightful social and entertainment was conducted Thursday night at the St. Anne's mission at Elsmere, the affair being for the benefit of the chapel, which was erected but a short time ago. A musical and literary program was given and general dancing was enjoyed.

The attendance was large and all spent a most enjoyable evening. Ice cream and cake being served at intermission by the ladies of the mission, headed by Mrs. Lester Pheneey.

The entertainment program consisted of readings by Fred Timmins, vocal selections, J. C. Wilby of Lowell, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Wilby. Other musical numbers were given and dancing was enjoyed till a seasonable hour. The affair was in charge of a committee headed by W. C. Stewart.

Attending Convention Mrs. Edith Page, Mrs. J. Curley of the Parent-Teacher association of the Kenwood school and Misses Garvey, Monk, Powers and Gallagher, teachers at the Kenwood school, are attending the sixth annual convention of the Massachusetts branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, which is being held at Quincy.

The convention which is being held at the high school hall opened yesterday and closed today.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Flanders of Belle Grove have returned from a pleasant week's stay at Providence, R. I., where they were the guests of relatives.

Rev. and Mrs. Ernest C. Bartlett of the Centre village are spending the week at Hildersville, N. H., where they are the guests of relatives and friends.

Associate hall last evening was the scene of a delightful and very successful dancing party conducted by the employees of the United States Bunting Co., at Associate Hall.

Since the inception of the popular organization of young men and young women many dances and parties have been held under their auspices, but that of last evening was easily the most successful. Largely through the efforts of the thoughtful members of the organization, the 1600 or more friends who attended had a most enjoyable time, and there was not a dull moment from start to finish. The music, the decorations and the favors introduced at intervals all served to keep the spirit of gaiety alive until the close of the festivities.

The hall had been prettily decorated, the orange and black of the Halloween season predominating. In the color scheme, orange and black banners were hung at intervals around the hall and streamers of the same color, aided by the myriads of incandescents, gave a pleasing touch to the scene. The stage was artistically arranged with potted plants, ferns and other greenery.

Music was by Frederick's orchestra, and the work of this popular musical organization elicited frequent encores during the early evening. The orchestra gave a short concert after which Misses Freda Cummings and Little Miss Lois Higgins, both of Lawrence, and pupils of Prof. Harry McWilliams, gave a delightful and interesting interpretation of modern dancing. The work of the little ones, who were only 12 years old, was roundly applauded and their instructor came in for well merited praise.

During the latter part of the evening, Mr. Herman Frazer, a member of one of the musical acts appearing at Kelth's, took a part with the orchestra on the stage. It was a very short time, but the early strains of an old-time waltz had him going, and he gave every musical instrument in the orchestra a try-out. His work at the drums was especially good as is evidenced by the fact that a two-step in which he performed lasted for over 45 minutes.

The officers having entire charge of the affair were as follows: John A. Gahin, general manager; John Gleason, assistant general manager; Miss Catherine Dunn, floor marshal; Miss Gertrude Johnson, assistant floor marshal; Miss Elizabeth Davidson, chief aid.

Aids: Misses Josephine Sheehan, Nellie Lardner, Anna Hickey, Alfreda Johnson, Julia Cronin, Anna Bradley, Sasie Warren, Bessie Droney, Julia Harrington, Josephine Cassman, Anna O'Connell, Margaret Fallon, Gertrude Droney, Mollie, Eric Ebbelund, Samuel O'Neil, David Coleman, John Mitchell, Leon Wiggin, James Lane, Charles Bates, Harry Smith, Bernard Ward, Thomas Kerwin, John Welsh, William Entwistle and George Ainsworth, treasurer, Frank Ogden.

Members of the Lowell Guild who have strips for the "Mile of Dimes" are requested to have them ready for collection after November 1st.

In all 60 acts of heroism were recognized by the commission, and the awards included eight silver medals and 32 bronze medals. Nine of the heroes lost their lives, and to dependents of these pensions aggregating $252 a year were granted, at the fall meeting of the commission in Pittsburgh, yesterday. To the dependents of one of these six and of three others sums totalling $215 were granted, to be applied in various ways. In addition to these money grants, sums aggregating $11,660 were appropriated, in six cases for educational purposes; in six cases awards amounting to $28,200 were made toward the purchase of homes and to other worthy purposes.

In the Yorkshire khaki factories in England the girls work from 6 a. m. to 3 p. m., and in the leather factories, where shoes for the soldiers are being made, 39 per cent of the women are working overtime.

What is Going on in the Village— Electric Worker Had Narrow Escape—Other Items

The joint session of the Massachusetts state highway commission and the Middlesex county commissioners at the court house in East Cambridge yesterday morning, held for the purpose of receiving petitions for road construction, was attended by a delegation from the village and Chelmsford Centre. They urged the building of a state highway on what is known as the Boston road from the Billerica-Bedford road to Chelmsford Centre. Among those present were the members of the board of selectmen, D. Frank Small, A. Heady Park, and Karl M. Perham; also C. George Armstrong, Charles Nichols, Charles E. Bartlett, Harry L. Parkhurst, Walter Perham, William B. Northrup, J. Clark Osterhout and others. The result of the conference was very satisfactory to the delegation and the county commissioners have guaranteed a further hearing to be held at the court house in Lowell, on December 20.

The sidewalk facing the residence of Mark Longman, agent of the Silesia mills, is being improved by the placing of much needed curbstones.

The roadway in front of the post-office is in very bad shape and should be put in good condition before the snow flies. In order to do this, a layer of about three inches of coal dust will have to be removed from the top of the roadway and substituted by gravel or other serviceable road building material.

It is reported on good authority that John McManimon is likely to be made postmaster. The term of the present postmaster, Charles S. Scribner, expires within a very short time.

Four of Hearts
The third annual social and dancing party conducted by the Four of Hearts in the town hall Thursday evening was the means of attracting a very large gathering from the village. The fact that the young women who form part of the "Four of Hearts" mostly come from Lowell resulted also in a very good number attending from the city as well as several from the surrounding towns.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the black and orange of the Halloween season prevailing in the color scheme. Gilmore's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing program which was enjoyed by all in attendance. Broderick's orchestra furnished music for the dancing.

The Misses Gladys Merrill, Edna Brundin, Helen Remmes and May Remmes were responsible for the artistic carrying out of arrangements for the party.

Silesia Mills
Business at the Silesia mills continues good and a full complement of help is steadily employed. An old building in the mill yard is being renovated and will be used as a garage for the company's auto trucks.

H. Stanley Chrysler, president and manager of the North Chelmsford Machine & Supply Co., informed the writer that business is good and the plant is running to capacity days.

Former Residents
After an absence of several years, Patrick and Frank McCuskey are now paying a visit to relatives in the village. Since leaving the village they went to Montana where they own a prosperous farming business. They will return to the western states after a short stay with their relatives.

Schools
Yesterday having been set apart as convention day for the teachers, the school sessions were suspended, and the students were given a full holiday. School work is progressing satisfactorily, according to Supt. Trubey, despite the fact that the school rooms are somewhat crowded. Unsatisfactory conditions are expected to be remedied within a very short time.

Woods a Menace
A strip of woodland known as "Barren's Wood," located near the village cemetery has been the subject of comment for some time among those who have occasion to pass by it. A woman or girl, it is said, cannot walk by the dark stretch at night without being insulted by young men, and in the daytime it is a rendezvous for crap shooters.

Congregational Church
Tomorrow at the Congregational church the sermon at the regular service will be preached by the pastor, Rev. Franklin Reeves. The various church societies are very busy making arrangements for a number of social and religious events to be held within a short time.

St. Alban's Mission
Rev. Wilson Waters of Chelmsford Centre will be the preacher at the service to be held at St. Alban's mission tomorrow. There will also be special music by an augmented choir.

His Life Saved
An employee of the Lowell Electric Light corporation, whose name could not be learned, miraculously escaped death on Tuesday of this week when he fell three stories from the roof of the Silesia mills where he was engaged running a cable. The accident happened, it is said, when the length of cable running from a reel in the mill yard to a staging he was standing on was run into by a horse driven by an employee of the mills. The man had a good hold on the wire coil when the horse's feet became tangled and he was pulled off the staging. The staging was also pulled down. Both the man and the stage went hurtling through the air, but fortunately the staging landed first. About half way down the man landed on the cable, breaking his downward fall and he then continued the descent and landed on the back of the horse which caused the trouble. He then rolled off to the ground. He picked himself up without assistance, and although somewhat shocked, was not injured beyond a few minor scratches.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

OPERA HOUSE

With five big acts of vaudeville and as many reels of the latest photoplay features, the Opera House on Sunday afternoon and night will offer a gala program and one of the best Sunday entertainments that Lowell has seen in many years. The program has been selected carefully from the best vaudeville headliners while the pictures include only the latest and best releases. The Exposition Film, a singing and musical act par excellence is certain to "clean up" using the theatrical term. McGowan and Cheney, Harry and Louis, the original cabaret boys, with their new songs and a piano are a sure fire hit everywhere and will have to respond to many encores. Tommy Dill, assisted by Nelson, has many new songs and stories. O'Neill and Cosgrove make up a dandy singing duo. Evans and Hardeen will furnish many laughs with their songs and gags. Seats are now selling for both performances. Get yours early. Phone 251.

"The Family Cupboard" that wonderful domestic drama, another bling ribbon winner among the recent big successes scored on the American stage is the offering of the Emerson players at the Opera House all next week and the early advance sale of seats indicates a record breaking week. It is a play with a stronger punch than either "Within the Door" or "Bought and Paid For," and for real excitement, furnishes thrills aplenty. It is a play that all parents should see—a play that all parents should send their children to see. It teaches a great lesson and has a moral.

The play tells the story of the Nelson family. It is a drama of contemporary life dealing with a phase of modern domestic life, somewhat startling perhaps but withal so true that the course of the Nelson family, a group representative of the better class, showing the consequences that are sure to follow when money has replaced love in the home and when the husband seeks elsewhere for the affection he does not receive from his wife. And running throughout this drama is a rich vein of comedy delightfully new and suffusing the whole play with cheery optimism of these likable characters. Few indeed are the plays that carry a message as potent and

The scenic and electrical production will be a revelation of artistic beauty while many new features will be shown in the dressing of the stage, new furniture and properties having been secured especially for this production.

"The Family Cupboard" has been secured by special arrangement with William A. Brady himself, after several weeks' deliberation and is limited to one week only. Seats are now selling for the entire week, so make reservations early. Phone 261 for seats.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The specially built program for the Keith theatre, tomorrow afternoon and evening, will be a pleasure in every particular. The management is putting forth every effort to give to audiences the biggest Sunday shows ever brought out locally. It has been found possible to use the orchestra of the Midnight Rollers for a program of well liked numbers. A new singing trio has been located. The three who will constitute this team are Francis, Ray and McHugh. Other specialties will be contributed by Bertha Creighton & Co., Albert Hawthorne and Jack Ingless, Sylvester & Vance and Ruby Wallace. The orchestra of the theatre will render a specially arranged concert program. Among the pictures to be shown is a wonderful three part one named "The Path of the Rainbow."

Next week's big show will be headed by no less a celebrity than that famed Samoan swimmer and pearl diver, Odiva. The paragon of this wonderful waterwoman is shrouded in mystery. She knows very little about her forebears. Were it not for the kindly influence of missionaries working among the natives of the far-off Pacific archipelago she might even now be one of the motley crew of beach combers that frequent the shores of the little known isles. Odiva does know that her parents were English, and were aboard a trading schooner which was lost during a Samoan storm. She and her mother were rescued from the waves, the latter succumbing shortly afterwards. Her father, the master of the vessel, died battling in the water. A tiny white girl was like a new toy to the simple kindly savages of the coast village, and she was soon the adopted daughter of the head chieftain. Natives of Samoa, in early childhood are much like web-footed fowl. The children are permitted to loiter about the sun-kissed beaches, and it is but natural that they soon develop into wonderful swimmers. And Odiva was like the children of the Samoan natives. She learned their water sports. She became amphibious, and as she grew older she became the champion surfer of the island, and later her abilities were used in diving for pearls, for Odiva was informed that everybody on the island must, at certain seasons of the year, dive deeply into the ocean in quest of the prized gem. Next week she will do some rare diving at the Keith theatre. She will have with her seats and a whole aquarium of strange fish. On Tuesday and Thursday evenings there will be special exhibitions, one for boys and girls and the other for adults, and special prizes will be awarded. Further notices of these will appear.

Charles Mack & Co., who are pleasantly remembered for their vivid Irish sketch called "Come Back to Erin" will appear in a new comedy, which is guaranteed to bring forth a laugh every thirty seconds. Mr. Mack will appear in the part of "Col. Connolly," while the other players will be Charles B. Nelson as "Mike Donovan" and Edna Bastedo as "Nellie Connolly." The title of the new comedy is "A Friendly Call." Lulu Coates will appear with her three crackjacks in a melange of singing, dancing and acrobatics. Danieles & Conrad are boy prodigies, one playing the violin and the other the piano. Their program will be composed wholly of classics. The four Charles will entertain with comedy novelty juggling and gymnastics and the act will close with a transformation scene. Bernard & Meyers will present a skit based upon the characters of the cab-driver and the "fare." It will prove to be a scream. Lew Fitzgibbon is one of the few absolute masters of the xylophone and he plays even the most difficult of rhapsodies. Good seats for all performances may be obtained in advance at the box office. Phone 25.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
The final presentation will be given at the performances today at the Merrimack Square theatre of the splendid bill of pictures for the latter half of this week which consists of two feature pictures and several other reels of high class pictures. Jane Cowell will appear today for the last time in the five act drama, "The Garden of Lies." Blanche Sweet, who has captivated all who appreciate the highest in motion picture acting, will also be seen today for the last time in the other five act picture, "The Secret Sin," produced by the Paramount Pictures Corp. The comedy for today is of an extremely funny nature and is very enjoyable, while the Paramount Traxof pictures present many interesting views of foreign countries. The Sunday concert tomorrow, which is continuous, starting at 1.30 p. m. will consist of a number of high class vaudeville hits and an equal variety of entertaining pictures. Those who are in quest of an enjoyable recreation tomorrow afternoon and evening are assured of a pleasant time at the Sunday concert at the Merrimack Square theatre.

OWL THEATRE

Florence La Hadio, in "The Price of Her Silence," a Mutual masterpiece in four parts, was well received at the Owl theatre yesterday. This powerful film will be shown at all the shows again today and with it will also be seen a Keystone comedy and four other first-run Mutual releases.

EX-GOV. STEWART DEAD

VERMONT'S GRAND OLD MAN

NEARLY 90—SERVED IN CONGRESS, ALSO AS U. S. SENATOR

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Oct. 30.—Ex-Gov. John Wolcott Stewart, Vermont's "Grand Old Man" many times honored with election to the highest offices within the gift of the state, died at his home at 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, shortly after returning from an automobile ride, from heart failure, doubtless induced by the natural decline with advanced age.

Middlebury's venerable citizen lacked but 26 days of completing 90 years, and while his career covered a generation past, he lived until the last in the present with his characteristic optimism.

Ex-Gov. Stewart's health had failed perceptibly within a few weeks past and his strength had lessened daily. However, he had enjoyed his automobile rides about town and apparently had suffered no ill-effects from the ride yesterday afternoon as he entered his library upon his return.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Since his retirement from public office he had spent much of his time winters in southern California and with his son in Colorado Springs.

John Wolcott Stewart was born in Middlebury, Vt., Nov. 24, 1825, a son of Ira and Elizabeth (Hubbell) Stewart. He graduated from Middlebury college in 1850, he married Emma, daughter of Philip Battell. To them were born five children, three of whom survive. Mrs. Stewart died nearly 20 years ago.

Mr. Stewart was admitted to the Vermont bar and began the practice of his profession in his native town. He followed his profession alone until 1851, when he formed a partnership with Ex-United States Senator Phelps.

Mr. Stewart was made a director of the Middlebury bank, now the National Bank of Middlebury, in 1858, and for several years prior to 1881 was president of the institution.

He was a strong republican. He represented Middlebury in the General Assembly in 1856, '57, '64, '65, '66 and '67, serving as speaker of the house of representatives during the last three sessions. In 1881 and 1882 he represented Addison county in the state senate.

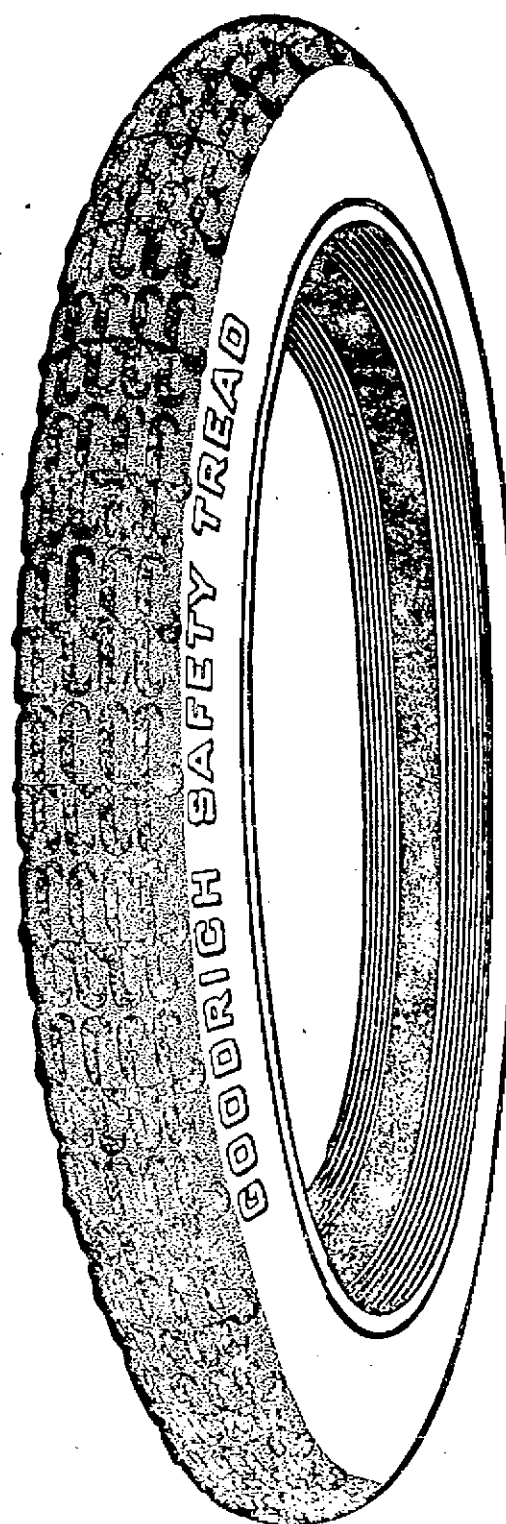

Mr. Stewart was governor of Vermont from 1870 to 1872, being the first to be elected for the biennial term. In 1876 he returned to the lower branch of the General Assembly as a member from Middlebury. In 1882 he was elected to congress from the 1st district and was re-elected to the three following congresses.

On the death of United States Senator Redfield Proctor, Gov. Stewart was appointed by Gov. Fletcher D. Proctor to serve until the election of a successor by the legislature from May to October, when the legislature elected Carroll S. Page of Hyde Park.

HALLOWEEN PARTY

A delightful Halloween party was held by the Lowell Caledonian club in Post 185 hall on Central street. An enjoyable entertainment was presented, including readings by Harry Leavitt, and songs by James E. Donnelly, John Dickenson and Lloyd Kirkpatrick. The accompanists were Dr. E. O. Taber and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, and Dr. Taber played a piano solo. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed. The committee on arrangements included: Andrew Livingston, Mrs. John Crawford, Miss Elizabeth L. Mitchell and John MacDougall.

The "Barefoot" Tire—and Why.

WHEN you take your Shoes off tonight, do this:
—Bear your weight on your right foot and, without lifting it off the floor, press it forward and backward firmly.

Then observe that only the bony and muscular structure of your foot moves forward and backward, while its sole stays fixed on the floor.

That demonstrates the rolling motion of flesh and muscle, the elastic cushion quality which reduces friction in walking, and prevents slipping (backward, forward, or sideways).

It supplies that CLING quality, which gives Traction without Friction.

It protects the Bones and Sinews of the Foot against the Wear and Tear of action, as a lubricant protects Metal moving parts, while providing the wonderful "Barefoot" hold on slippery surfaces.

CONSIDER now the means by which Tires have been given maximum Traction,—i. e., by means of a "sandpaper" texture in the Rubber of their Anti-Skid Treads. Assuredly such Tires do give Traction.

But, every time the Brakes are put on, to make such Tires grip the road, the relatively hard, unyielding, and comparatively brittle, texture of the Rubber in their Treads causes these Treads to grind away on the pavement, to WEAR OUT fast at the point of contact.

The sudden efficiency of their grinding-Traction also tugs so sharply on the Rubber Adhesive between the layers of Fabric in Tire as to separate these layers.

There is little "give" to them—just as there is little "slide" to them.

So, they gain Traction at the expense of Mileage.

Naturally such Tires require a great BULK of such Rubber in order to deliver reasonable Mileage before worn out.

And, therein they differ radically from Goodrich "Barefoot" Tires.

Because,—

—The Safety-Tread on Goodrich Tires is made of a very unusual, secret, and exclusive Compound, which we will here call "Hyper-Rubber."

It is much lighter, in weight, than the Rubber used in other makes of Tires, being free from the "sandpaper" ingredients that are heaviest and inert.

Observe, that every pound saved on the weight of Tires (or any part of a Car below the Springs) is equal to a saving of 30 pounds when supported above the Springs (ask your Engineer).

Its lightness, however, is secondary to its STRETCH, its enormous STRENGTH and Longevity.

AND here is how it acts in Automobiling.—

—When the weight of the Car bears on this clinging "Hyper-Rubber" Tread, and the power is applied to go ahead or reverse, the stretch in the Sole (or Tread) of the Goodrich Tire acts as a sort of Lubricant between the Fabric Structure of the Tire and the Road.

Then the Hyper-Rubber "Toes", of the Goodrich Safety-Tread Tire, CLING to the pavement (instead of grinding against it), just as your Bare Foot would cling to a slippery surface—without Grind, and so, with the minimum of Frictional Heat or Wear for maximum Traction.

Goodrich "Hyper-Rubber" is made into Goodrich Motor Cycle, and Bicycle, Tires, as well as into Goodrich Rubber Boots, Over-Shoes, Soles and Heels.

CHANGE THE FIRE LAWS

The terrible calamity at Peabody that has thrilled the state with horror and compassion has aroused a discussion of our fire-prevention and building laws that should not be permitted to die down until a repetition of the tragedy is made impossible. Out of the mass of conflicting statement comes the fact that in all main essentials the law was complied with, and yet in this compliance with the law there was every possibility that instead of 20, the list of victims might have been 200. When, in a new building, built according to the law and sanctioned by the public authorities, a fire may break out so suddenly, gain headway so swiftly and thoroughly cut off the hope of escape for helpless little ones, it seems time that the law were changed.

Discussion of what might have been can now bring nothing but sadness and yet it is necessary that every phase of the matter be investigated deeply. Deputy Chief Neal of the state police, acting head of the state police department and for years the state fire marshal, says that a slight rearrangement of two flights of stairs would have made it possible for all the children to escape. From the lurid accounts of the fire, it would appear that neither the doors nor the stairs nor the corridors were so arranged as to afford protection, and yet in all probability the school was quite as safe as the average school building in this state whether public or private. When such things can exist under the law, the law should be made over for the protection of the school children and in the interest of the state.

An examination of the state regulations "relating to the erection, alteration and inspection of schoolhouses" reveals some curious inconsistencies. While the need for safety is emphasized in every clause of the law, fire escapes are not strictly required. Instead, the law demands certain supposedly safe exits, and where a fire escape has been erected, it "may be considered as equivalent to a required exit." Even if there are more than two floors, it would seem that the law simply requires corridors, stairs and doors of certain dimensions and of a certain number, but what use were doors and corridors in Peabody? Most of those who escaped were forced to jump from the windows of the different schoolrooms. The blocking up of the front door was a terrible misfortune, but we are to assume that the front door and all the other doors were built in compliance with the state regulations.

All who have spoken of the Peabody fire with any degree of authority seem to have agreed that the children would have gotten out safely if they were not scared by the sight of fire on the first floor and thrown into a panic. This would be likely to happen in any school and it would be foolish to assume that hundreds of boys and girls of such tender years would walk out calmly through smoke and stifling air, especially if they see the creeping flames as they did in Peabody. Of what use are laws governing corridors and exits in such a case? With hundreds of young children in a struggling, screaming mass it would be next to impossible to avoid disaster, and where children have fled only during school fires, they have rarely been brought in touch with the actual fire.

The only safe provision in Peabody would have been an adequate fire escape running around the building or at least two sides of it on upper floors and of a type suitable for school purposes. If the drill had led to a fire escape, the children would not have seen the flames and there would not have been such a chance of panic. In all probability the entire school would have been safe long before the flames burst over the pitiable group inside the front door. It will be strange if the sequel to the conflagration does not bring about a legal mandate for fire escapes on every school building in Massachusetts. The Peabody fire is proof positive that the present laws are not adequate.

VOTE FOR GOV. WALSH

It is much to be desired that the vote next Tuesday will be heavy and that Governor Walsh will be re-elected by a sweeping majority. This is in the hands of the voters to determine, and it is our conviction that Governor Walsh will be retained in office by the people of this state which he has served so faithfully and well during the past two years. In giving him a third term the people will follow an established precedent for Massachusetts has been quick to recognize merit and to reward sincerity.

Governor Walsh should be re-elected, not only because of what he has accomplished but in order that he may continue the reforms to which he is pledged. The democratic platform is a positive document full of progressive principles but on the whole it only embodies policies and principles for which our governor has fought strenuously for the past two years. Many of these reforms have been blocked by a republican legislature but after the exposures of the present campaign, it is not likely that the legislature would again so thoroughly oppose every movement for the good of the public.

Governor Walsh should be elected for other reasons also. He should be elected as a rebuke to the republican party which has been most unfair to him during the campaign as Mr. McCall could not find a strong issue in the record of our chief executive, so indirect insinuations were resorted to. These were refuted fully and the republicans then fell back upon attacking the democratic administration at Washington. Wishing to be judged by his record, Governor Walsh did not hide behind the mantle of the national administration, but he courageously and openly discussed phases of state politics that must have been very uncomfortable for his chief opposing candidate. It is hard to believe that Massachusetts will take the advice of Mr. McCall and vote against Governor Walsh in order to hurt President Wilson or help the reactionary party of which McCall is the representative. The plan was puerile and it ought to be answered by voters intelligence by an overwhelming vote for Governor Walsh.

It cannot be denied that Governor Walsh has been a good governor of the state. When he first ran for office opposition to him was largely personal and it was stated that he would not be fair or courageous. After two years in the public eye, he has proved to be so eminently fair and so courageous in all relating to the welfare of the public that his opponents do not recall old prophecies. They have to admit that he is sincere and well-meaning and all fair men will admit that he had been a progressive champion of popular rights and a friend to the great masses of the people. His work for taxation reform, for popular education, for compensation to the injured, for pensions for the needy, for the farmer and factory worker has set him apart as one of the greatest governors this state has ever had. He has been really a friend of the people and the people should show their loyalty to him on next Tuesday.

Voters of Lowell: Do not neglect your duty next Tuesday and do not neglect the opportunity to stand by Governor Walsh, a chief executive who has not been controlled by party or selfish group but who has done his duty faithful with the needs of the people in mind. Whether you be republican, progressive or prohibitionist, you cannot gainsay the fact that Governor Walsh is the most desirable candidate. After a strenuous campaign waged on the republican side with desperate intensity, Governor Walsh stands out without a stain on his merit or official reputation. Vote for merit, for sincerity, for ability, for honesty, for genuine progress—vote for Governor David I. Walsh.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

In answer to some attempts of the republicans to swing the support of the anti-liquor interests to McCall, the Massachusetts Anti-saloon league has issued a circular under the caption: "The Truth About the Liquor Responsibility Bill and Where the Responsibility For Its Defeat Belongs." This circular explains Governor Walsh's veto of the liquor transportation bill and shows how by clever political manipulation the bill has been made useless by a republican amendment. The league gives great credit to Governor Walsh for his honesty and sincerity and places in contrast the evasiveness of the republican legislative leaders who found some means to kill every bill presented by the anti-liquor interests. As the circular says: "These bills have been systematically juggled by the committees to whom they were referred, given leave to withdraw and summarily killed by invoking all the political tricks that are possible in legislative procedure." Governor Walsh is fully vindicated by those best able to state the real facts in the case, and the Anti-saloon league warns Massachusetts that the republicans are not sincere friends of temperance.

NO PEACE PARLEYS

Owing to the recent discouragement in the Balkans and the expected description crisis, there has been considerable agitation in England. This has been reflected in parliament where several pointed questions have been asked the government. The illness of Premier Asquith has prevented a satisfactory announcement of the government's policy, but David Lloyd George has spoken for the nation in declaring that there is no weakening of the original decision. Lloyd George declares that England does not intend to talk peace until the initiative is taken.

by a defeated Germany. This declaration will serve to banish the fears that may have cropped out here and there, especially when coupled with the fact that recruiting is better and that a considerable force has been sent to stop the Teutonic drive to Constantinople. Though England may reveal domestic differences and descend to factional wranglings, all parties are agreed on the fundamental necessity for courage, hope and a deathless determination to win.

STREET FLUSHING

Those who have been forced to breathe our city dust for the past few weeks will hail with joy the announcement that the board of health has secured the consent of Commissioner Morse to flush the down-town streets twice weekly. An attempt was made to have the fire department attend to the work but it properly belongs to the street department and so is in the right hands. Since the fall weather set in the dust has been far worse than in summer, and an agitation to have the streets flushed even more often than twice weekly would find popular support. Many of the larger cities are discarding the practice of sweeping the streets and are depending on nightly or daily washing for results. Since the residential sections have been treated to oil coating the dust has not been so troublesome, and it is to be hoped that the determination to flush the streets of the business section will have a like beneficial effect.

NOTE TO ENGLAND

It is said unofficially that the long-promised note to England protesting against its interference with American commerce is now on its way by special messenger. It has been in preparation for months and is said to cover every phase of the controversy. If so it is a long document for England has made very plausible answers to our former protests and some points are frankly debatable. It has long been seen that the standards of international law cannot be applied to this war owing to the lack of precedent covering some of its phases, but the great principles are immutable and the standard of America is for principle. The note was delayed deliberately until the main contentions with Germany were settled, and there is now no other large issue to interfere with the discussion by both governments. It is anticipated that England will compromise so as to palliate the public opinion of America.

The congestion of the blood in its low causes pain. Sloan's Liniment penetrates to the congestion and starts the blood to flow freely. The body's warmth is renewed; the pain is gone. ## SEEN AND HEARD

The advocates of equal suffrage have at least one victory in getting people generally to call them suffragists, instead of suffragettes.

Even now the buffalo nickels are not commonly seen in circulation. Pretty soon some of the people who are hoarding them may have to hire a larger hat.

A man cannot be so sure now that a girl will feel complimented if he tells her that she resembles Sarah Bernhardt. Sarah has got to be seventy-odd years old.

Josh's Education

"When Josh got home from his education," said Farmer Cornsoul, "he started right in instructing me about agriculture. So I didn't lose no time to try him out."

"What did you do?"

"Sent him out to round up a swarm of bees."

"Was the experiment successful?"

"Some. It didn't hurt the bees none, an' kep' Josh from gettin' in the way for 'most two weeks."—New York Post.

No Excitement

John was grieving because he had no gift for mother's birthday. "Do not quarrel with little sister all day," suggested grandmother. "That would be the best gift she could have." John agreed.

"Can't you see how much mother enjoyed your gift, John?" asked grandmother at night. "Why don't you do this every day?"

John drew a breath that came from his very boots.

"Id rather die, grandma, than live like this every day," he said fervently. —Rehebebs Sunday Herald.

Revenge

"Twas worth the pangs of shame I've had."

When we have disagreed And I have taken grounds from which He's forced me to recede, For often I have had to yield, And so it was a special joy

To that provoking man who's sure That he is always right.

I've yielded many, many times, With what poor grace I could, I've tried to keep my temper, as A Christian person should.

And so it was a special joy For once—and hence my song— To down that man, that cock-sure man, And prove him in the wrong! —Somerville Journal.

Two Temples

A builder built a temple; He wrought it with grace and skill, Pillars and groins and arches, All fashioned to work his will.

And men said, as they saw its beauty, "It never shall know decay, Great is thy skill, O builder! Thy fame shall endure for aye!"

A mother built a temple With infinite loving care, Planning each arch with patience, Laying each stone with prayer.

None praised her unceasing effort, None knew of her wondrous plan, For the temple the mother built Was unseen by the eye of man.

Gone is the builder's temple, Crumbled into the dust; Low lies each stately pillar, Food for consuming rust.

But the temple the mother built Will last while the ages roll, For that beautiful unseen temple Was a child's immortal soul. —Hattie Vose Hall.

High Cost of Sickness

It costs a good deal more to be ill now than it did before the war, that is if medicine is to be used. An instance of this was noted a few days ago by a citizen, who was called upon to make a purchase of medicine for a member of the family. A prescription which formerly he had paid 25 cents to have filled, he was this time called upon to pay 75 cents. Inquiry revealed that a certain ingredient had advanced in price from a few cents an ounce to as many dollars an ounce and was hard to get at that. If the war keeps on the medical men will have to find substitutes for the imported drugs, if they do not want to bankrupt their patients.

EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS

Owners of Real Estate in Many Sections Are Improving Property—Other News

Owners of real estate throughout the city have shown great activity of late in repairing their buildings and making many alterations for the betterment of the same. Judging from the permits granted at city hall during the past week the number of permits to make alterations, additions and general repairs greatly exceeds the number of applications granted to erect new buildings. Among those who have been granted permits to make alterations, the name of John P. Curley, proprietor of the John Street public market, stands out prominently. Mr. Curley is about to make extensive alterations to his property located at 28-30 John street, which will cost in the neighborhood of $5000. A tenement on the first floor will be changed over into a store. Several partitions on the upper stories will also be changed and an addition will be made on the front of the first story. On the second and third stories and addition will also be added to the rear. The roof will be squared up, thus making the building four stories high instead of three and one-half. The basement of the building will be deepened considerably to allow for the dropping of a stone floor. Bath rooms will be installed on the second and third floors.

A radical change will be made in the building of the Daniel Swan estate, located at present used as a barn. The barn will be moved to a new location and will be converted into a one-family dwelling of eight rooms, pantry and bath. A new foundation will be laid for the building at its new location. New partitions will be erected on both floors. The interior will be refinished and the entire building will undergo a thorough renovation. A front piazza will be added.

Daniel Callahan will change the pantry of his house located at 26 Second avenue, into a bath room. The cost for this change will be $100.

John A. Simpson, 67 Methuen street will change the building on Howe st. over into a garage, having concrete floor, skylight and plaster ceiling, at a cost of $350. The rear of this altered building will be cut down one story and used for a dyehouse with a concrete floor. A new roof will replace the old one which is to be removed. The cost of this latter alteration will be $200.

Charles T. Kilpatrick will build a dwelling house of five rooms, pantry and bath at 22 Maryland avenue. The new building will have a pitch roof and will be heated by gas. The cost of this house will be $3500.

The building at 15 Bassett street owned by Walter Jackson will undergo several changes. Two rooms of the house which have formerly been used as sheds will be finished up and will be made over into a chamber and bath at a cost of $200.

Charles P. Witham will erect a one apartment dwelling house of 7 rooms, pantry and bath at 20 Putnam avenue which will cost $1800. A steam-heating system will be installed.

Fred M. Barney will add a piazza to the rear of the two-story building at 16-18 Pearl street.

The house located at 10 Durant st. and belonging to the Edward Duran estate will be changed over from a one-family dwelling into a two-family house. An addition will be built for a kitchen and a pantry on each floor. Some of the partitions on each floor will be changed and the stairway will be altered to allow for separate front entrances. When complete, each apartment will have seven rooms, pantry and bath. The cost of the undertaking will be in the vicinity of $2500.

A one apartment wooden house of 8 rooms, pantry and bath which will cost $1500 will be built for Louis Marchand at 312 Aiken avenue.

The first story of the building of George Kafalias at 44 Fenwick street will be changed over to make a store. New front doors will be added.

The building owned by Catherine Pelletier and located at 37 Hanover st. will be considerably altered. The change will make the building into three six-room flats, each with pantry and bath. New floors will be laid and many other interior changes will be made. The cost of the whole will be $1500.

Frederick Ayer will build a garage which will cost $200, at 272 Pawtucket street. The garage will have a concrete foundation.

The building at 99 South Walker st. which belongs to the George F. Penman estate, will have a dormer window added, one room on the second floor and a bathroom in the rear for occupancy. The cost will be $100.

The shed of Anne Mitchell which is in the rear of 39 Fourth avenue will be converted into a garage with concrete floor at a cost of $40.

REAL ESTATE DEALERS

Byam Bros. real estate brokers, with offices at 97 Central street, report the following transactions for the week ending Oct. 25th:

Papers have been passed conveying title on a large parcel of renting property situated on Salem street. It consists of a block of five tenements and store, at 215-217, a six-apartment block at 219, and a two-apartment house at 231. This two-apartment house has steam heat, open plumbing, bath, and is practically new, having been built about two years ago. The six-tenement block has six rooms to each apartment. The renting capacity of this property exceeds $2000 annually. This property has been sold for the J. J. Dacey heirs, and the purchaser is Victor E. Salsols, the well known cartwright of this city.

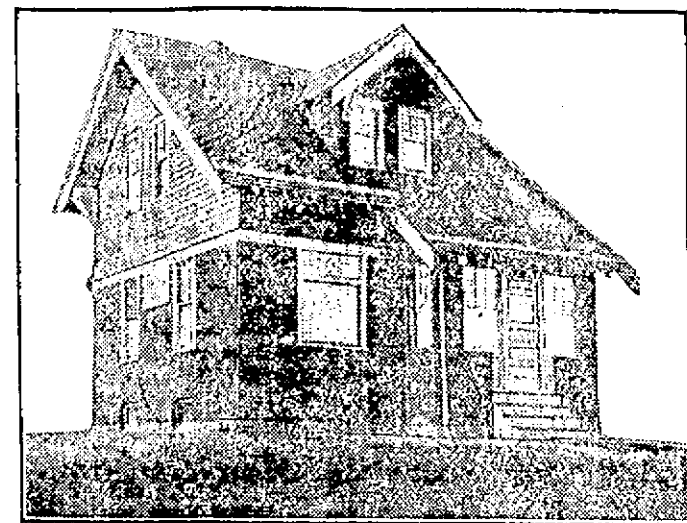

Contracts have been closed on the sale of a first class building site near Moore street. The lot comprises over 4000 square feet and lies well to grade. It is the intention of the purchaser to erect a modern house in the near future. Details of this transaction will be given when the final papers have been passed.

Contracts have been closed on a very desirable and attractive suburban property in Dracut center, comprising a seven-room house, bath, hot and cold water, gas, electric lights, town water, excellent barn, in fact the buildings are in perfect condition. With the buildings is an acre of excellent land with a nice variety of fruit. The purchaser is buying for a home. Names and full details will be given at a later date.

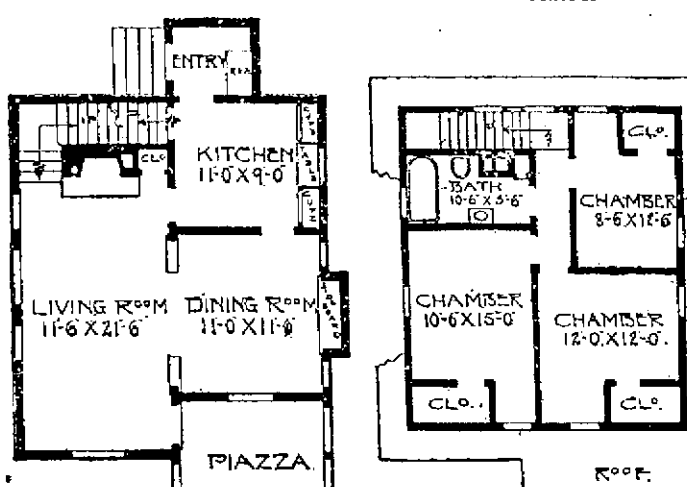

It is a well known fact that in order to prove in all respects satisfactory a cement coating must contain the elements of a corrosion nature, and it is equally desirable that it dry on the walls without destroying the texture of the material. It is generally conceded that the proper medium is one which does not contain an oil affected by alkali, and one which evaporates as soon as it is applied. This leaves the base of the coating an integral part of the surface and preserves the distinctive texture of the cement because it settles in the pores. A cement coating that made from a base of a concrete nature, does not turn yellow, and is said to admit of many pleasing tints. As neither rain nor snow can penetrate cement walls thus treated there is no discoloration and the natural dampness of the cement is said to be reduced to a minimum. One of the most interesting pieces of evidence which the manufacturers of this coating submit to architects and builders is a comparative photograph showing a concrete or stucco building before and after it has been coated. This is only one of many interesting photographs reproduced in the new catalog which the company has published and a copy of which will be sent to any interested reader who may make application for it.

As the winter season approaches and building operations are greatly lessened, the carpenter-contractor and the Popular patterns of metal weatherstrips can now be purchased direct from the manufacturers and the installation can be done by any enterprising and wide-awake carpenter and builder at a figure which gives him a good return for his trouble and labor.

THE BUILDING OPERATIONS IN 1914
The figures of building operations for 1914 just made public by the United States geological survey show that, although there was an apparent general decrease in building operations throughout the country, ten cities which during the year 1913 showed decreases rallied in 1914 and showed increases.

The most noteworthy feature in the building industry in 1914 was the large decrease in New York City, by which it lost its rank as the leading city in cost of building operations. Being passed by Chicago. The cost of building operations in Chicago was $53,261,710, against $44,050,241 in New York. New York's decrease, compared with 1913, amounted to $3,074,466. The greatest increase shown in any city was in San Francisco—$7,140,290—the second largest increase being in Brooklyn—$7,109,801.

In forty-eight selected cities the total cost of building operations in 1914 was $619,752,254, compared with $673,220,655 in 1913.

Efforts were made by the geological survey to obtain detailed information from the leading 157 cities in population. Replies were received from 147 of these. 113 of them furnishing sufficient details to permit the publication of figures by classes of buildings.

Building operations in the 147 cities cost $55,525,746. In 1914, in 113 of these cities the new buildings of all kinds cost $461,651,108; new wooden buildings, $166,226,259; new fire-resisting buildings $236,454,868, and new brick buildings cost $181,957,652. All other new fire-resisting buildings cost $114,497,118.

The cost of all additions, alterations, and repairs in these 113 cities was $67,280,432, $24,553,577 of which was for wooden buildings and $42,726,855 for fire-resisting buildings.

SQUARE PANELED PORCH COLUMN
A porch column which of late has gained much favor on account of its pleasing style and appearance, and is much in demand in the construction of the bungalow type of houses, is the square-paneled style column, says a writer in a recent issue of the Wood Worker. Columns of this type may be easily constructed in several simple ways, such as setting the panel in an oval and placing molding around, or rabbeting same to fit panel into corner stile. Recently, however, I came across a column of this kind, which is away ahead of any I have seen, and I believe it worth while to give an illustration of the type of construction used, and which shall be practically self-explanatory.

The edge stiles are run over the shaper (after being planed to proper dimensions), where two dove-tail grooves are cut on the inside edges. The panels are also made with a corresponding dovetail edge. A small brace shelf is placed in the bottom and top of column to strengthen the dovetail construction, and the column is ready to be put together. It will be observed that in this type of construction practically no nails are used, except the few used in inside shelf. Consequently there are none to show, or putty to fall out after the column is on the house, which often gives a column of this type a bad appearance. It can be safely claimed for a column thus constructed that it cannot split, pull apart, warp, check or break, and will practically last as long as there is a roof on the house.

The making of this kind of column will not mean any expense for new machinery where there is a shaper in the equipment and the price of a dove-tail bit is only nominal. The plan that goes in for this type of construction will not alone get the bulk of trade for its vicinity, but will turn out a product upon which it can stake its reputation to the highest degree.

BOWLERS WERE BUSY

MANY LEAGUE GAMES ROLLED ON DIFFERENT ALLEYS LAST NIGHT—SEVERAL HIGH SCORES MADE

It was a busy night on the alleys for there was something doing at all of them. At Kittredge's the Lawrence hosted rollers were present in force and rolled off their schedules, the following teams winning: Hose Finch, shipping room, Yarn Dept. Shirt Finish, Rose Fixers and Web Knit.

On the same alleys the Kimball System league opened with the Federals defeating the Americans and the Nationals defeating them in a second game.

The Print Room defeated the Cotton department in the Merrimack Mingle league.

On the Crescent alleys, the U. S. Cartridge Stock room defeated the Fixers and the Tewisbury A. C. lost to the Banlings.

The Lafayette defeated the Woodmen on the Jewel alleys.

The totals of last night's games were as follows:

DAY HOUSE—Mayo, 233; J. Kerr, 253; Paul, 255; Spriggs, 221; Davidson, 251; totals, 1303.

LOSS OF $350,000

Fire Swept Through Large Storehouse at Biddeford, Maine

BIDDEFORD, Me., Oct. 30.—A loss estimated at approximately $350,000 was caused by fire which swept through half of the large storehouse of the Bennett Manufacturing Co. early the peppered manufacturing co., early today, destroying several thousand bales of raw cotton and much of the finished product. Its origin was attributed either to spontaneous combustion or to the unobserved dropping of a spark into a bale of cotton before it was placed in the building. One fireman was badly hurt by falling from a ladder.

The fire started on the third floor of the five-story brick structure which was divided into six sections, each separated from the next one by a fire wall. Three of these sections were burned out. It is believed little damage was caused to the product stored in the other three. The flames were so threatening to the remainder of the plant and other surrounding property that apparatus was summoned from Saco, Portland and Old Orchard Beach. The fire department and the fire companies of several local mills also assisted in fighting the blaze and wetting down wooden buildings in the vicinity. It was several hours before the fire was brought under control.

THE AMERICAN INDIAN

Interesting Talk on the Red Man By One Who Has Had Much Experience with the Indians in the West
"The American Aborigines" was the subject of a very interesting illustrated lecture by Rev. W. A. Petzoldt at the First Baptist church last evening. Mr. Petzoldt comes from Pueblo, Colo. and has worked among the Indians of the western states for the past 15 years.

Mr. Fitzhugh described the Indians as he has known them, the Crows in particular. They do not read the Democrat or the Ladies' Home Journal, he said, and they live in the open on the ground floor. None of them will ever die with nervous prostration, he said. The fashions followed by the women are not up-to-date. They know almost nothing about the outside world, and the speaker doubted very much that any of them knew anything whatever about the present war in Europe. They could not comprehend it at all, if they did.

He said that the greatest sing menace to the advancement of the Crows is their dancing. They get to gether for the dance every so often.
The Crows do it rather more, I thought, than some others of the tribes. And when the dancing begins unavoidable sins are committed.

One of the pictures shown was of four dancers who had formerly been students at the Carlisle college in Pennsylvania. These young men have all received excellent educations, and yet once they had returned to the reservation, they sank back to the old Indian way; all of their education had been for naught. Illustrating the point, he said that a young Indian girl who had obtained an excellent education in a western college, and then went back to her Indian parents for a visit. She

But the first night her clothing was destroyed, and she was forced to go into Indian attire again. She was further told that the Great Spirit had never intended her to be as white women are, else the spirit would have made her white. And so she went back

Christianity, spreading among the Indians, he said, is changing much that old notion, with the result that those who have become professing Christians are rapidly seeing the light and are not reverting.

THE SPELLBINDER

Next Tuesday will be the day on which all state contests and three constitutional amendments, including the question of "votes for women," will be decided, and after that the municipal campaign.

That the close of the state campaign finds the republican party in bad shape is evidenced by the severe attacks of its leaders upon other parties that have presumed to put up candidates, the progressives and prohibitionists. They have even dragged the unoffending and thoroughly innocent Christian Endeavor society into the fray.

They deny the progressives and the prohibitionists the right to a place on the ballot simply because they fear that these parties will draw votes from the republican ticket. They encourage, however, any and all parties that will draw votes from the democratic end.

Unable to find any good material with which to attack Gov. Walsh's record as chief executive, they have fallen back on each other. They have been afraid to attack the national administration because President Wilson's attitude is not open to attack, so they simply state that any other president would have done the same thing, though in their hearts all are deeply grateful that the pugnacious Teddy is not in office.

As the republicans claim, there will be undoubtedly a slump in the vote of the progressive party this year, but they also claim that those who desert the progressive ranks are to line up with the republican party. They have already elected a democratic district attorney and register of deeds and they came very near electing a county commissioner. This year finds considerable dissension in the republican county ranks and not a few candidates.

In the contest for county commissioner, two republican candidates will appear on the ballot. Mr. Cutting, the validity of whose nomination after a snap convention after the voters had chosen another man, and John L. Dyer, who before the nominations roundly rapped the county register. Opposing them is Michael H. O'Connor, a former member of the board of aldermen, a well known and highly respected resident of the university city.

In the contest for sheriff, Sheriff Fairbank, with Messer disposed of, has been turning his mind to other and happier things. Police Officer John J. Donovan has been scouring the city and has secured the most convincing assurances of support. Officer Donovan is one of the best known and most popular policemen in Middlesex county, and he has friends in every city who are hustling for him.

County Treasurer Hayden may not have things so much to his liking this year. There is a popular independent republican candidate in the field in the person of DeWitt Clinton Clapp. On the democratic end, David A. Keefe has the sanction of both the democratic and progressive parties. There may be something doing in the treasurer contest. The campaign speeches made by Harold D. Wilson before the primaries concerning Mr. Hayden's career in office hold good today as they did before the primaries and Mr. Wilson while defeated made many voters sit up and take notice.

The Local Contests
In the local contests, Representative Burke deserves to win for the campaign he has put up. His appearance on the stump and his knowledge of the affairs of state left no doubt in the minds of all who heard him as to his superiority over his republican opponent in statesmanship, eloquence, ability and activity. Of course Senator Kimball assumes that because he wears the label of the republican party, every republican voter must support him.

The eighth district will see a close contest between James P. Dunnigan and Senator Marchand. The latter offended the farmers while in office and they have long memories. The great question of the opposing parties is Dunnigan with over 10 years' experience as an assessor for the town of Chelmsford is capable to act intelligently on such a matter.

Brennan Looks Good
As election day draws closer the wisecracks of the 14th district express the opinion that John W. Brennan will be given the second term in the legislature that was denied him one year ago. Mr. Brennan had a first class record during his first year and the value of that record is enhanced by comparison with that of his successor, Mr. Colburn. Last year Mr. Brennan had two parties to contend against, but this year there is no progressive candidate, and the fight is between two citizens and public officials of the town of Dracut. During his term at the legislature Mr. Brennan found time to attend strictly to his local duties as town clerk which made him many friends among men of the opposing party, while it is said there has been some criticism of Rep. Colburn's conduct of his local office so he went to the legislature.

The 10th District
John J. Higgins looks awfully good to the election posters of the 10th district. Mr. Higgins, like Mr. Brennan, after serving one year, is defeated for a second term. Now, it is believed, will get the second term after all. Mr. Higgins is a resident of Billerica, having in mind the welfare of the Billerica car shops, has given much study to the condition of the Boston & Maine railroad, and is well equipped to consider that matter which must come up in the legislature.

The Constitutional Amendments
The questions of taxation and the acquiring of homesteads have taken a back seat among the constitutional amendments as the result of the great interest aroused in the question of women's suffrage. The women have recently made a wonderful campaign. Despite the best efforts of the promoters, however, there is still an indifference, if not an opposition, in that is going to operate seriously against the success of the measure. Surprising as it may seem, there are many men right here in Lowell who can't honestly tell at this moment how they are going to vote on the question. They don't know. They may favor suffrage or not, at the last moment, as the spirit may move them.

The Emergency Clause
After flitting away nearly a year over the Dummer street extension matter, when the political influences who had been promised the extension put on the screws the municipal council threw everything else aside and got busy on Dummer street to such an extent that they wanted to apply the emergency clause to the loan order so as to save a few days' time after waiting nearly a year on the matter. Many believe that nothing would be done on this measure but talk, but again was demonstrated the fact that politics rules the roost at city hall, and when the influences behind the Dummer street matter threatened the members of the council on election day, the council proceeded to rush through even to the extent of applying the emergency clause, with the intent to save about 10 days on a matter which as Commissioner Duncan said has been before the city council for 30 or 40 years.

Fire Department Undermanned
One of the strangest statements that has emanated from the present administration came from Col. Carmichael, Mayor Murphy and some of the men made lengthy statements in the newspapers in criticism of former Commissioner Barrett for appointing 10 men to the regular fire department, in accordance with the civil service laws. They claimed that Barrett had loaded down the fire department with men who they would not recognize as appointments and would not appropriate money for their pay. Rounding up a party, they appeared before the civil service commissioners to have the appointments rescinded. In fact they so frightened the men whom Mr. Barrett had appointed that the latter engaged counsel to protect their appointments. Commissioner Barrett believed that the civil service should be given the preference in appointments to the regular department; but until the voters accepted the act providing that call firemen after five years' service would be eligible to appointment under the civil service they were not allowed that preference. After the voters accepted the act, Barrett made 10 appointments. Col. Carmichael immediately upon assuming office, with the assistance of the mayor, did all in his power to nullify the appointments. The civil service commissioners refused to take back the appointments and the men began their duties and are on duty today. Yet within a few days after the election had informed the public that the fire department was overloaded with permanent men he comes out with another statement to the effect that he cannot permit the flushing of the downtown streets in the morning because the department is undermanned by 20 men.

Col. Carmichael's statement was promptly seized upon by the Courier-Citizen to hand a jolt to the firemen themselves, and incidentally to their pet cause, the one-day-off-in-five proposition. The firemen are in no way responsible for the failure to have the streets flushed down. They are obliged to do their orders from Col. Carmichael. If they could do the work on their own initiative there isn't the slightest doubt that they would cheerfully do that little act for the benefit of the public. If I remember rightly, since Col. Carmichael has been at the head of the fire department, the firemen have been called out to wet down the streets in the congested districts during the evening hours of the election and to pump out cellars that have become overfilled. They certainly have done this work in the past when there were not as many men on the department as there are at present. If the fire department is short of permanent men it is up to Col. Carmichael and not to the voters. Col. Carmichael has charge of the department for over one year, and there has been a vacancy in the Ayer City house for over a year. That vacancy existed when the appropriations were made this spring. There has been another vacancy since Hoseman Collins was retired and no attempt has been made to fill it. There is an eligible list of applicants patiently waiting to be appointed.

But if the department is in need of men, it is also sorely in need of new apparatus and horses, and the money for apparatus, at least, has been available for months. We'll probably hear of something being done now that election is near. Reporters tell that we may hear the colonel deciding to take some machines made for another city and rejected.

After Chair-warmers
Jackson Palmer spoke at Liberty square, Thursday night, and again adapted himself to his surroundings for instead of enumerating the number of democrats and republicans holding jobs at city hall, he launched forth upon a broad non-partisan rant and said: "If any man is going to vote for me for partisan, race or creed reasons, expecting to get something on those lines, say, away with his vote." He further stated that if elected he would give the city a two-fisted, broad, energetic administration under which men with brains would have a chance to hold the positions at city hall instead of the lot of political chair-warmers who have come down from the old form of government. He stated that the chair-warmers now holding office are all partisan appointees of the old time partisan government, and have never been disturbed. He then told a story about a clock at city hall that had stopped, and for two weeks three clerks engaged in a dispute as to whose job it was to wind it, while the clock remained "stopped" during the entire discussion, until finally City Messenger Alphonse would it himself.

Thompson About Due
Perry Thompson is about due for a statement as to whether he will be a candidate for mayor or not. After next Tuesday the public will expect his announcement and is at present awaiting it with deepest interest. With a boom for Thompson launched a long time ago and his friends working in his behalf for a long time, just as the game got warm a hitch occurred and the men who have been talking Thompson for a year and in some cases two years are held up by Mr. Thompson himself, who will not announce that he is a candidate, and who incidentally keeps them on the anxious seat by declining to state that he will not be a candidate. It is a well known fact that the friends of Mayor Murphy have been trying their best to keep him out of the contest, and there has been much talk as to inducements being offered Mr.

FIRE VICTIMS ARE BURIED

Cardinal O'Connell Officiates at Funeral of Peabody Children Who Perished in School Fire

PEABODY, Oct. 30.—This busy manufacturing town hushed its machinery today to pay a silent tribute to the memory of the 21 little girls who lost their lives in the fire which destroyed the St. John's parochial school on Thursday. The parents of three of the children elected to have their little ones buried in private, but to the 18 others was accorded the solemn homage of a public mass at St. John's Roman Catholic church.

Early in the day thousands of residents made ready to join the procession to the church. Rev. Nicholas J. Murphy, pastor of the church, although crushed almost to prostration under the weight of the calamity which befell the school over which he had spiritual direction, was ready to officiate at the services. The church could not hold all who wished to attend. The supply of carriages in the town was exhausted and many citizens gave the use of their automobiles to make room for the long line of mourners.

All stores and factories were closed an hour before the time for the funeral and it was arranged that they should not be reopened until the services had been concluded.

Cardinal O'Connell Spoke

Cardinal O'Connell, accompanied by the Rt. Rev. J. P. Copplinger, arrived at the church shortly before the mass began. They occupied seats within the altar rail.

At the conclusion of the mass, Cardinal O'Connell delivered the sermon and closed by pronouncing absolution. Sixteen separate services were held in the cemetery, one body being sent to Malden for burial. Each coffin was followed by its own procession of mourners.

cars to attend the funeral while many prominent citizens from Brookline and Sharon, where the deceased had formerly labored, were in attendance. Large delegations from Lexington representing Lexington council, 94, Knights of Columbus; Division 34, A. O. U. M. W. the Holy Name society of St. Bridget's church, the Ladies' society of the same church and the Daughters of Isabella occupied seats in the centre aisle.

Solemn Requiem Mass
At 10 o'clock to the music of a

stately funeral march the long line of vested prelates and clergymen filed upon the altar. His Grace, Bishop Anderson, of Dorchester, occupied a throne on the gospel side of the altar and was attended by Monsignor William O'Brien of this city and Monsignor M. J. Spillane, of Roxbury, as chaplains. Bishop Da Silva, of this city was also in attendance and his chaplains were Rev. Owen P. McQuinn, O.M.I., and Rev. D. A. Sullivan, O.M.I. Solemn high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Lawrence P. Tighe, O. M. I., pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, assisted by Rev. Daniel Cronin, of Concord, as deacon, Rev. David Murphy, of North Billerica, as sub-deacon and Rev. Thomas J. McCormack, of Norwood, as master of ceremonies. Rev. Charles A. Ulrich, of Orient Heights, East Boston, was censor-bearer and the acolytes, were the two curates of the deceased at St. Bridget's church, Rev. Conrad J. Quirbach and Rev. D. Joseph Burke.

The music of the mass was particularly impressive and was sung by a choir of priests consisting of Rev. M. J. Scannell, of the Cathedral, Boston, director, and Rev. John J. Burns, of South Boston, formerly of this city; Rev. Denis O'Brien, of Cambridge, also a former Lowell resident; Rev. Fr. Conroy, of the Cathedral, Boston; Rev. Richard Spillane, of Watertown; Rev. William Casey, of Malden; J. Frank Driscoll, organist at the Cathedral, Boston, presided at the organ. The choir sang the Kyrie from Terry's requiem mass; the Introit and Graduale from Carey's requiem while the "Dies Irae" and the remainder of the mass were from the old Gregorian chant. At the final absolution Turner's "Libera" was sung. The solo parts were sustained by Rev. John J. Burns. After the service, and while the body was taken from the church, a male choir of laymen consisting of Prof. P. P. Haggerty, Messrs. John J. Dalton, James E. Donnelly, Andrew A. McCarthy and Charles P. Smith, sang "De Profundis." Mr. Dalton sustaining the solo.

Bishop Anderson's Remarks

His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell, a close personal friend of the deceased, in sending his condolences to the family had announced his intention of being present at the funeral services but the unfortunate disaster at Peabody had compelled him to absent himself and he sent as his personal representative, Bishop Anderson. At the close of the mass Bishop Anderson addressed the congregation and spoke in part as follows:

"His Eminence, the Cardinal was particularly desirous to be present at this service to pay his tribute of love and respect to the deceased, but owing to the terrible calamity that so suddenly and so unexpectedly has befallen the Catholic people of the neighboring city of Peabody his duty as head of the church called him to that grief-stricken community to extend spiritual consolation to the bereaved parents of the young victims of the disaster. He desired to come here not only as the head of the church, as a mark of recognition of the faithful service rendered by the deceased in his holy calling, but because of the intimate personal relations which he had enjoyed since boyhood's days with the deceased and the members of his family.

"Fr. Costello, although called to his reward while yet in the prime of life had accomplished much good among his fellowmen. His labors having been principally in the sparsely-settled districts of the archdiocese, he had been untiring in his work for Mother Church. In the district of Sharon he had won many souls while by his kindly disposition he carried happiness to all among whom he labored. His faithful and zealous labors were recognized by his superior who appointed him to a parish of greater size and responsibility, confident that in this field he would achieve even greater results, but soon after his appointment a fatal illness came upon him and from the moment that his nature became apparent to him he was thoroughly resigned to the will of God and spending his closing days in close communion with his Maker he passed away peacefully and happily, a beautiful death fittingly closing a life well spent in the service of his God and his fellow-men. His death should cause us to reflect rather than to grieve, for death must come to us all and in contemplating Fr. Costello's death we should realize his exemplary life, and so direct our thoughts, our prayers, our lives, that when the final summons comes it will find us like him whom today we mourn, fully prepared for a life of eternal happiness."

After the church service the casket was replaced in the hearse and the funeral cortege proceeded to the Catholic cemetery where at the family lot the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Tighe, O.M.I., assisted by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O.M.I. and the visiting clergymen. The choir of priests sang the office for the dead at the graveside following the usual committal ceremony.

The honorary pall-bearers were Rev. John J. Fleming, S.J. of Holy Cross college, Worcester; Rev. James Stanton, Boston; Rev. M. T. McManus, Brookline; Rev. James O'Rourke, South Boston; Rev. James Landrigan, Whitman and Rev. E. Joseph Burke, Lexington. The active bearers were Dr. J. H. Kane, Lexington and Messrs. H. D. Lyons, Lexington; T. F. Quinn, Sharon; J. W. McGrath, Sharon; William H. McManus, Brookline and Jos. W. Cook, Brookline. The ushers, the house and church were: Messrs. James F. Owens and Charles D. Martin of Lowell; Charles Vaughn and Jeremiah McCarthy of Lexington, and Frank O'Hearn of Brookline. The funeral arrangements and interment were under the direction of James F. O'Donnell & Sons.

Will Flush Streets

FIREMEN WILL GLADLY DO THAT WORK IF PERMITTED

AN OBVIOUSLY UNFAIR STATEMENT prejudicial to the firemen's ONE-DAY-OFF-IN-FIVE proposition appeared in Friday's Courier-Citizen as follows:

"Just a bit of alacrity on the part of the firemen with regard to the project for flushing the main paved streets for the next few weeks would have been worth more than several hundred dollars' worth of paid advertising in advocacy of that blessed one-day-off-in-five. Conversely, the present reputed unwillingness of the firemen to help in the flushing project is almost certain to militate against the success of this year's referendum."

No firemen have expressed unwillingness to flush the streets, and no firemen have any authority in the matter.

THE FIREMEN ARE WILLING TO FLUSH THE STREETS NOW, AS THEY HAVE DONE IN THE PAST, and as they have pumped out cellars in the past.

The firemen, willingly or unwillingly, can do only what the fire commissioner orders them to do; and cannot do what the fire commissioner orders not to be done.

The question of alacrity or willingness does not enter into the proposition on the part of the firemen. IF THE FIRE COMMISSIONER WILL PERMIT THEM, THE FIREMEN WILL GLADLY FLUSH THE STREETS, BUT THEY CANNOT DO IT WITHOUT HIS AUTHORITY.

The Lowell firemen have never been found wanting when they could be of service to the public.

E. P. CUNNINGHAM,
Secretary Lowell Firemen's Club.

EXECUTOR'S SALE

OF A LOT OF LAND CONTAINING ABOUT 10,820 SQUARE FEET, MORE OR LESS, SITUATED IN MIDDLESEX STREET, NEXT TO PROPERTY NUMBERED 895.

On Next Friday, November 5th, 1915, at 3 P. M.

I have instructed the auctioneer to sell at absolute auction sale, to the highest bona fide bidder, this certain lot of land containing about 10,820 square feet, with a frontage on Middlesex street of 50 feet, located about opposite Queen street.

This lot is situated within close proximity of numerous shops and factories and would make a splendid spot upon which to erect either a business block or an apartment house, as a modern property in this section is much sought. It is within one minute's walk of the Middlesex street and North Chelmsford electric car line.

Remember, the lot is to be sold to whomsoever will bid the most.

Terms: $100 must be deposited with the auctioneer just as soon as the lot is struck off.

By order of JESSE J. SMITH,
Executor of the will of Mary S. Robinson.

Commissioner's Sale at Public Auction

OF THE WARREN FOX ESTATE, IN TWO SEPARATE PARCELS, SITUATED AT NOS. 369-371-373 BRIDGE STREET, AND NOS. 14-16 SECOND STREET, CENTRALVILLE.

On Monday, the Eighth Day of November, 1915, Commencing Promptly at 3 O'Clock P. M.

WITH THE BRIDGE ST. PROPERTY AND FOLLOWING IMMEDIATELY WITH THE BLOCK ON SECOND ST.

By virtue of an order issued by the Probate Court, I have instructed the auctioneer to sell to whomsoever will bid the most at absolute auction sale, in two parcels, this extraordinary and extremely well situated estate.

The properties comprise a four-story gravel-roofed block containing 12 tenements and two stores at Nos. 369-371-373 Bridge street, and an eight-tenement four-story structure at Nos. 14-16 Second street.

THE FIRST PARCEL—The Bridge street block has 12 tenements and two stores; nine tenements have three rooms, and three tenements have four rooms each, with separate toilets, gas, woodshed for coal and wood on each floor, ash chutes directly in the basement, plentiful supply of closet room, large windows and the rooms being of good size and high posted give the tenant plenty of light and air.

The flats are conveniently laid out, the plan of the buildings making it easy for the tenants to care for their homes. The building is high-studded, heavily timbered and one of the best constructed blocks in the city.

The stores are large, with good show windows and have been occupied by the present tenants for a great many years. The store at No. 369 Bridge street is rented to George H. Miller, a manufacturing confectioner, who has established a lucrative business. The other store at No. 373 is conducted by J. M. Kingsbury, the well known meat and provision dealer, who has been on these premises for 25 years.

The property is all rented and pays an income of $155.50 per month. The tenements ranging in price from $6 per month to $11. The total yearly rental of the premises is $186.

The building is in extra good repair, and but for a little painting could be classed as in A-1 condition. It is equipped with fire escapes.

The lot has a total area of 3360 square feet, more or less with a frontage on Bridge street of 50 feet.

Its location on the right side of the street, directly opposite West Third street, in the very heart of Centralville's business district, demands the attention of all persons interested and desiring business really for investment.

Terms of first parcel—$300 must be deposited with the auctioneer just as soon as the property is struck off.

THE SECOND PARCEL—A four story frame block containing 8 tenements with 3 rooms, pantry, gas, and separate toilet to each, in fair repair. The lot has a total area of 3960 square feet more or less with a frontage on Second street of 50 feet. The location is excellent for property of this description being just around the corner from the main thoroughfare, Bridge street; and with a little attention can be made a most profitable investment, when entirely rented it shows an income of $16.18 per week, or a yearly rental of $844.38. The flats are nicely laid out, each having 3 rooms all on one floor, are supplied with coal and wood sheds, and separate toilets.

This is an exceptional property for anyone to own who can attend to its needs personally, as its location will warrant a steady and continuous rental.

Terms: $250 must be deposited with the auctioneer just as soon as the property is struck off, other terms made known at the sale.

INVESTORS AND SPECULATORS, ATTENTION

This sale presents an unusual opportunity, when you consider a business property, all found to be extraordinarily good tenants, property in good physical condition, within a minutes' walk of the very center of Lowell, (Merrimack Square), in a business street, with up-to-date property around it, directly on two of the car lines, within easy walking distance of the very largest of Lowell's manufacturing industries, close to churches, schools, theatres, stores, etc., being offered at absolute bona fide auction sale, to whomsoever will bid the most and comply with the terms of sale.

ATTEND the sale as property with the income yielding quality, that will pay the revenue on the money invested that this shows is seldom if ever sold at public competition.

By order of CHARLES A. RICHARDSON,
Commissioner.

BRITISH WARSHIPS IN COLLISION

SWEAR ALLEN LINER HESPERIAN TORPEDOED

Navy Dept. Finds That Fragment Found on Liner Was Part of a Torpedo

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Secretary Lansing announced today that the navy department had indicated that the fragment of the engine of war which sank the Allen liner Hesperian was a part of a torpedo. The German government has persistently denied that the Hesperian was torpedoed. In the opinion of United States naval experts the fragment could not have been a part of a marine mine.

The secretary said the result of the navy department's investigation would immediately be communicated either to the German government directly or to Ambassador Bernstorff.

The secretary volunteered no information regarding what form the communication to the German government might take.

Germany has made to the United States a qualified disclaimer of responsibility for the sinking of the Hesperian. In a note to Ambassador Gerard on Sept. 14, the foreign office said that on the face of the evidence then at hand Germany was satisfied that the Hesperian was not sunk by a German submarine.

The fragment of metal examined by the navy department experts was said to have been picked from the deck of the Hesperian after the explosion. The Hesperian sank early in September off the Irish coast while making her way to port after being disabled by the explosion. The fragment was made of polished steel, and was about nine inches long. It was sent to the state department by the American embassy at London.

The state department heretofore had been in doubt regarding the direct cause of the sinking of the Hesperian. A number of affidavits from the passengers and officers of the ship have been received by the state department. The signers swore that the ship had been torpedoed. The fragment of metal was sent along as proof that the statements in the affidavits were true.

The Hesperian was declared to have been in the regular passenger service. The state department has been informed there were no troops aboard at the time of the sinking, but some wounded Canadian soldiers were traveling on individual tickets as passengers. Two Americans were passengers.

The position of the United States has been to take no steps to question the good faith of Germany's assurances, unless it was shown clearly that the sinking of the Hesperian was in violation of them. The president and Secretary Lansing have been reluctant to believe that the Hesperian was sunk deliberately without valid excuse. Just what weight the report made by the navy department to Secretary Lansing will have could not be definitely ascertained.

ONE SENT TO BOTTOM 100 MEN ARE MISSING

British Auxiliary Sweeper Hythe Run Down and Sunk by British Warship Off Gallipoli Peninsula

LONDON, Oct. 30, 5.04 p. m.—One hundred men are reported missing after a collision between the British auxiliary sweeper Hythe and another British warship off the Gallipoli peninsula in which the Hythe was sunk.

The announcement was made today in an official statement by the British admiralty as follows:

"During the night of Oct. 28-29 H. M. S. Hythe, an auxiliary sweeper, Lieut. Commander Arthur Bird, was sunk after being in collision with another of his majesty's ships off the Gallipoli peninsula. At the time of the collision she had on board about 250 men in addition to her crew. One hundred are reported missing."

CITY OFFICIALS TALK OF SCHOOL FIRE RISKS

Commissioner Carmichael Makes Some Good Suggestions for Protection of Schools

Since the Peabody tragedy in which a score or more children were burned or trampled to death in a burning schoolhouse, great interest has been manifested as to the condition of school houses in Lowell as regards safety from fire. So far as can be learned from building inspectors and other officials, conditions here are such as to satisfy the state police. The fact that the inspectors are satisfied seems to satisfy others that the schoolhouses are all right.

There are only three or four of the public schoolhouses in Lowell that can boast of fire escapes and these include the High, Washington and Varnum schools. There is also a sort of makeshift fire escape on the rear of the Green school. The fact remains, however, that there are fewer children on the third floors of the public schools than heretofore, as classes on the third floor, in some instances, notably that of the Edison school, have been abandoned. The third floor of the Edison school was given up at the suggestion of Supt. Molloy, who claimed that the lives of the children would be in jeopardy there in case of fire. The third floors of the vocational schools for girls and boys are also being used, but the school committee is not at all satisfied with conditions there. The schools referred to are the Morrill and Old Ballard.

Commissioner Carmichael discussed schoolhouses today and said that in his opinion the fire drill is a very important thing, but he thinks it is not being successfully operated here. The commissioner thinks that the doors to schoolhouses can be very much improved. "I believe," said the commissioner, "that the doors should be automatically just as soon as the alarm for a fire drill is sounded. I also think that there ought not to be any regularity as to the sounding of the fire drill alarm. I would suggest that the chief of the fire department should have the right to go to any of the schools personally and sound the alarm. He knows how about fire drills than the teachers and he could instruct the children if necessary."

"I presume that the schoolhouses in Lowell are as safe as elsewhere. The panic was the cause of the trouble in Peabody. If the children had gone out without getting excited they would have been all right. But the deadly confusion took place and I really think that the same would have been avoided if the doors had been swung wide open. I think that to insure absolute safety schoolhouses ought not to be more than one story in height. It would require more land and it would cost more money to build one-story schoolhouses, but money is not to be considered where human lives are at stake."

The story was told at city hall today and at the office of Commissioner Carmichael, that upon learning of the tragedy enacted in the schoolhouse in Peabody, Principal Irish of the Lowell high school sounded the alarm for the fire drill and that considerable confusion was experienced, not with the scholars but with the teachers.

Francis Connor, inspector of buildings, said that all of the grammar schools are all right; that every inch of the law relative to fire has been lived up to. He said, however, that fire escapes ordered by the state police had not been installed because the department hasn't the money with which to do the work. "We asked for $3500 for schoolhouse work that included fire escapes and the council allowed us only $2000."

Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, gave his opinion that Lowell schools would probably compare quite favorably with the schools of other cities so far as safety in case of fire is concerned. "It makes no matter," said the superintendent, "what the law is and no matter what the interpretation may be put upon it there should be no fixture of any description by which it is even possible to lock a school door from the inside. The order to be followed in clearing a school for fire drill should be posted in each school building showing how any exit or all exits are to be used and the place at such a time for every teacher and janitor in the building."

French Make Further Gains in West—Montenegrins Take the Offensive Against Austrians Near the Serbian Border—Position of Serbia More Desperate—Nish Threatened

Large Russian forces are to attempt a landing on the Bulgarian Black sea coast, according to advices received in Berlin, which hears that large contingents on transports conveyed by a strong squadron have sailed from Odessa and Sebastopol.

Capture of Pirot
Details of the capture of the Serbian stronghold of Pirot, which had barred the Bulgarian path to Nish, are telegraphed from Sofia. Some doubt has existed as to whether the Bulgarians had completed their occupation of the town. Details of the capture of the capture is carried in the current statement by the Vienna war office.

French Make Gains
The French have made further gains in the Artois region, occupying a section of German trenches at Bois-en-Hache. They repulsed a German attack near Hill No. 140, southeast of Souchez. These announcements are made in today's official statement from Paris.

BAY STATE STREET RAILWAY
MAKES FIRST RETURN UNDER NEW FORM OF ACCOUNTING

The annual returns of the Bay State Street Railway company, which has made an application for a 6-cent fare rate, filed with the public service commission, show that the road paid during the past fiscal year 2 1/2 per cent dividends on the common stock and 6 per cent on preferred stock, a total of $677,846.

For the previous fiscal year the Bay State paid 5 1/2 per cent on common stock and 6 per cent on preferred, and the dividends paid by the company have not fallen below the 5 per cent mark for several years until the present year.

The returns just filed show that the operating income for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, was $1,537,271, or $681,742 less than the corresponding figure for the previous year. The gross income is given as $2,623,733, which is $588,779 below the 1914 figure.

The passenger revenue is given as $3,775,350, or $133,556 less than that for 1914. The total operating revenue for 1915 is $3,332,529 and the corresponding figure for the previous year is $3,824,285 lower. The total operating expenses were $1,821,321, showing an increase of $481,245 over the previous year.

A figure that will have considerable bearing on the pending 6-cent fare case is the ratio between the operating expenses and the operating revenues. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, this ratio is given as 73.94. During the previous year the return of the company shows this ratio to be 65.87.

The item called "legal expenses," which includes all legal expenses except the settlement of claims for damages, is $63,956.17 for the past year. In 1914 this figure was $34,006.85. The aggregate wages paid during the past fiscal year, $1,417,329, and the total number of employees, 632.

In accordance with a provision of the law, the company filed, in connection with the annual return, a list of the officials of the company receiving a salary of more than $6000 a year. The list follows:

Patrick E. Sullivan, president, $30,000 a year; Robert S. Goff, vice president and general manager, $15,000; Charles R. Root, vice president and treasurer, $10,000; Joseph J. Goodspeed, assistant treasurer, $7500; Charles F. Bancroft, superintendent in charge of motive power and machinery, $10,000; Henry E. Reynolds, assistant general manager, $7500.

This return is the first filed by the Bay State under the new form of accounting prescribed by the interstate commerce commission.

TEACHERS MEET

Convention of Middlesex County Teachers Held in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—One of the topics which created interest and discussion on the part of the teachers in attendance at the convention of Middlesex county teachers at Tremont Temple yesterday was the plan known as the "Teachers' Annuities Guild." This is an organization of teachers seeking to carry out a plan providing that each teacher contribute part of her salary toward a fund to furnish annuity to the teacher upon her retirement. One of the women who first became interested in this subject, Miss Mary McMillin of Roxbury, principal of the Pierce school, Brookline, made an address on this subject. She said in part:

Grandmother of Idea

"The Teachers' Guild, in its preamble, says that time and experience are sufficient to prove that no teacher in the graded schools is able to save enough out of her salary to lay up enough of a fund so that at the time when she is no longer able to teach she will have something by way of income with which to support herself.

"The guild has for its object a sincere effort to ameliorate this condition. It seems to me that from the time I have been enthused about this idea of teachers' annuities, and the length of time during which I have done all that I could to push it along, I may be said to be not only one of the mothers of the idea, but one of the grandmothers.

"The business of being a teacher requires an outlay of time and money not many persons are just enough to take into consideration. Added to this the teacher occupies a certain position of respectability, and leadership in every community that automatically requires her to live in a certain manner. These things contribute toward the handicaps of saving money that I have before hinted at."

The guild was organized 22 years ago, and at the present time has a permanent fund of about $250,000. By the income return from this endowment, it is thought that the annuity which the income could provide at present would amount to but a little more than $100 a year. For this reason it was urged that the teachers for their self-protection should at once, by voluntary personal assessment, run this endowment up to at least a half a million dollars.

Need Community Spirit

Following the address of Miss McMillin, President William H. P. Faunce, D.D., of Brown university, addressed the convention on the subject of "What Industry May Expect From Education." President Faunce said:

"We should have a much better community spirit in this country if every individual would get the idea that the state was in a great measure his silent partner in all that he undertook.

"We have the very great problem to devise a form of education which shall most successfully meet the necessities of a population of children which meet here in America. It is true that from all who come to us we receive great gifts—the gift of love of color, an appreciation of art and of poetry.

"But one idea we must keep in mind, as teachers, is that America is not a co-partner with the rest of the world. These people who come here from other countries and bring their children must constantly keep in mind that they are not to be the only of the country they leave behind them. Their whole allegiance and unswerving loyalty must be to the country which makes the education of their children possible.

"Manifestly the time has come for us to say that if they choose to live among us they must live with us and the aim of one must be the common aim of all. This should be no country with room enough in it for racial or any kind of hatred, for such hatred is both irrational and unreasonable.

Guard Against Agitators

"We should constantly be on guard against those agitators among us, professional agitators one may correctly call them, who make it their business constantly to stir up all the racial hatred they can. We shall know that the man who constantly reminds us that the Japanese are sly, cunning, and tricky and always at the point of making war upon us, is rendering no good service to America.

"We shall know, too, that any man who under the guise of any such play as the 'Birth of a Nation' seeks again to stir sectional and racial hatred is not rendering service to our country.

"International hatred should have no place in our schools. Let us as teachers take on something of the gentleness of manner of Felix Adler who found something delightfully good to say about every race he came in contact with. In these days when so many of the children we teach may be the sons and daughters of men and women born over the sea, the best we can do is to make them so respect the law under which they live that they will try to make better laws; that they will so honor the law as to desire that it shall be honored more and that finally, being just enough to honor every race, they will seek to help every race.

Faithful to Future

"Constructive effort is needed in the schools. We must train our pupils to create and be creative. The creative and assimilative faculty is as important as anything else we can possibly do. This is the best ideal I can leave with you to strive for, that you and I may be faithful servants of the Americans that are to be."

The officers of the Middlesex County Teachers' association elected for the coming year were as follows: President James D. Howlett, Medford; vice-presidents, Edward R. Clark, Winthrop; Ernest P. Carr, Marlboro; Mary E. Northup, Somerville; Henry A. Henshaw, Woburn; executive committee, D. G. Wheeler, Newton; Charles J. Emerson, Stoneham; W. Ward Mrs. Foss, Cambridge; J. FREE FOR THIS VISIT

To all who call at the NEW AMERICAN HOTEL, Monday, Nov. 1st

I will give Consultations, Diagnosis of Disease, and Examinations, Absolutely Free of Charge.

Never before has such an opportunity been given the sick of this vicinity, and if you are suffering, you should not fail to take advantage of it. Those wishing to see him should remember the Days, Dates and Office Hours of his visits and call early to avoid the crowded last hours.

For nearly 15 years I have been studying the Chemistry of food and Chemistry of the human body. I have put these two sciences together and formulated the science of Applied Food Chemistry. By the application of this knowledge I can cure all forms of stomach and intestinal diseases, and all other disorders that result from wrong eating and drinking. This method cannot fail to cure it conforms to the laws of Nature.

It is estimated that ninety-two per cent. of all diseases are caused by errors in eating. These errors are made by wrong selections, wrong combinations, and wrong proportions of food. I teach you how to correct these, how to select, how to combine and how to proportion your food according to your age and your occupation. This cures by removing causes. It gives Nature a chance. This is the true science of human nutrition, and it is governed by laws as inflexible as the laws of gravitation. If you obey them you cannot be sick. If you do not obey them you cannot be well.

You have no idea what your body is capable of, until you have it perfectly nourished. You have no idea what your mind is capable of, until it lives in a perfectly nourished body.

Dr. NAUGHTON will positively be at the NEW AMERICAN HOTEL, MONDAY, NOV. 1st, 1915 from 10.00 o'clock in the morning until 7.00 o'clock in the evening to consult with and examine all cases personally.

A man who gave his name as Lessard and claimed to live at 21 Tremont street was taken to the Lowell hospital yesterday afternoon, suffering from an injury to his knee. It is understood that a case fell on him.

Residents of Howard street and the vicinity have notified the police of the existence of a person who practices the Peeping Tom tactics. The man has been sneaking in dark places and peeping in windows. Women and young girls who frequent Howard street also complain of being accosted by a strange man, who on one occasion attempted to snatch a handbag from a pedestrian.

A horse owned by the O. P. Davis stable on Middlesex street demonstrated its speeding power by dashing up Central street last night at a record clip. The horse had been hired by a traveling salesman and when left alone near the corner of Central and Market streets started up the street at a gallop. Patrolman Clark ran into the street and by a clever jump halted the animal.

REPUBLICAN RALLY HELD

SEVERAL SPEAKERS HEARD AT C.M.A.C. HALL LAST NIGHT—REP. ACHIN PRESIDED

A republican rally was held at C.M.A.C. hall in Pawtucket street last night where about 500 voters gathered to listen to speeches by republican leaders of the state. The meeting was quite an enthusiastic one.

Rep. Henri Achin, president of the Franco-American republican club of Massachusetts, introduced as the chairman of the evening Dr. Rodrigue Migault as "next mayor" of Lowell.

The first speaker was E. A. Brodeur of Worcester, secretary of the F. A. republican club, who spoke at length on the Franco-American appointments made by Governor Walsh during his last term, saying out of the seven appointments, four are honorary positions.

The next speaker was Channing Cox, speaker of the house of representatives, who for a few minutes addressed the gathering in the French language.

The principal speaker of the evening was Joseph Lister, editor of "La Justice" of Holyoke, who proved to be an orator of great ability. Mr. Lister attacked the administration of President Wilson, which he said was the main issue of last year's gubernatorial elections all over the country.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers was given an ovation when introduced, and opening he said he was pleased to state his first political address this

With This Shoe at Four Dollars Can You Afford to Pay More?

IN making shoes it is not a difficult problem to create style alone, or comfort only; nor is it difficult to cheapen the price by inferior leather, or add to the wear by increasing the price.

The real shoe-making problem is, of course, to produce stylish, comfortable, durable shoes at a popular price.

Only the most efficient among the largest manufacturers can make a shoe that fits the purse, the foot, the eye and ages honorably.

The speaker took for his text, "The Federal Government," and dealt with the importation of toys. The congressman closed by an appeal for McCall. Other speakers were Rep. Henri Achin and Rep. Victor F. Jewett.

MATRIMONIAL

Guy W. Holman and Miss Charlotte E. Sherman, the latter a former book-keeper at the local office of the New England Telephone Co., and both of Lawrence, were married Thursday evening at the home of the bridegroom's parents in South Lowell, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Ernest Herlick. At the close of the ceremony a wedding supper was served and the couple left on an extended wedding tour. Upon their return they will make their home at 533 River street, Lawrence.

NEEDLE WORK GUILD

At the 19th annual meeting of the needle work guild of Lowell, held at the home of Mrs. G. J. Carney, it was voted to discontinue the guild and work through other organizations. It was also decided to contribute the funds of the guild, clothing and money, to the Florence Crittenton Rescue league, the Faith home and the Social Service league. The needle work guild was organized in January, 1897 and has helped many families in a private way.

OVATION TO GOV. WALSH

the love of the people of Massachusetts.

It was originally planned to have a local committee meet some of the principal speakers at the Richardson hotel, but in the rush of the final campaign rally, it was impossible to arrange the program with any degree of certainty. The speakers of last night came from different cities and towns and they came at different times so that it was not possible to have a formal parade or reception. A few of the early evening speakers went directly to city hall, and shortly after 8 p. m. the local democratic committee including Mayor Murphy, Humphrey O'Sullivan, D. J. Donahue, Joseph P. Donohoe, Assistant District Attorney Robert J. Crowley, Postmaster John F. Meehan, J. Joseph O'Connor, Cornelius F. Cronin and others, drove from the depot to city hall where a vast concourse was assembled. Monument square was literally packed with people and the crowd kept growing larger and larger until the speakers on city hall steps declared they had never seen anything to approach it at a political rally in Lowell.

Edward T. Barry

Edward T. Barry, Esq., candidate for lieutenant governor, was the first speaker to arrive. He spoke briefly, attacking the record of Calvin Coolidge, his opponent, and paying a high tribute to the administrations of President Wilson and Gov. Walsh. Mr. Barry proved a very entertaining speaker, driving his arguments home pointedly and in a brief review sketching the achievements of the democrats in spite of republican opposition in and out of the legislature. He was followed by Michael M. O'Connor, of Cambridge, candidate for county commissioner, who made a strong address in praise of the principles of the democratic party, pleading for the support of the people next Tuesday and expressing his confidence that the people would reward merit and distinguished service.

The Speakers

Before the arrival of Governor Walsh, which was not until after 11:30 p. m. the various speakers, in their respective order were: Joseph F. Donohoe, Mayor Murphy, chairman of the rally, Hon. Frederick W. Mansfield, former state treasurer, Hon. John F. Meehan, Humphrey O'Sullivan, D. J. Donahue, Esq., Hon. John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, Hon. Joseph J. Donahue, candidate for Atty. Gen. Joseph H. McNally, candidate for the executive council, Hon. Robert J. Crowley and Judge Riley of Malden.

Ovation to Governor

Judge Riley was speaking when Governor Walsh's auto drove up. Immediately the word passed through the crowd which was now most enthusiastic and very expectant. As Governor Walsh stepped from his auto Judge Riley called for three cheers. The response was such as to gladden the heart of the governor for the thousands present united in cheer after cheer and it was several minutes before the excitement and applause died down. So ardently did the people press forward to greet him that it took the combined efforts of a squad of police to keep the crowd back. When Gov. Walsh started to speak it was apparent that the strenuous campaigning had almost worn him out. His voice was very hoarse and he looked tired. Yet as he stood on the city hall steps and surveyed the mass of upturned faces, he was filled with a new spirit and he made a splendid address during which his voice rose clear over the crowd as though it was his first speech that day instead of his twentieth or more. The enthusiasm of the people was wonderful, and it was displayed throughout his address by the rousing cheers that greeted any strong declaration and by the cheering calls of individuals. The magnetism and popularity of Governor Walsh were never better displayed than in this outdoor rally which kept thousands patient and expectant until midnight. At the close of the address Governor Walsh was again cheered many times, and he went on his way knowing that Lowell will stand by him next Tuesday.

Gov. Walsh's Address

Gov. Walsh spoke in part as follows: "This is indeed a wonderful demonstration and I am deeply moved. When thousands stay from their homes until this late hour to see their governor, what does it mean? It means that victory is in the air, that the people are aroused as never before to stamp out the forces and influences that have been robbing them and neglecting their best interests. It means that the man who works loyally and faithfully and fights wealth and corporate interests in behalf of the people can get more than office; he can get the love and affection of the great masses of the common people.

"I have resisted and fought for you, the telephone companies, the railroads, the insurance companies, the lighting companies, and the public realizes what a calamity it would be to drive out the free voice of the people from the government of Massachusetts. We'll win because we're right, despite the oligarchy of wealth and selfish, powerful private interests. We are fighting against the dollars of our opponents, but we will fight from our trenches with the ballot of Massachusetts citizenship.

"I would say to McCall: 'You are not running for president, nor for congress; you are running for governor. You are not expected to change the tariff or the currency bill or the wars in Europe or Mexico.' Yet, when I ask Mr. McCall what he pledges himself to do if elected, he begins to talk about the war in Europe.

"Why does he not take a stand on the taxation problem? Here tonight I declare to the people that I shall veto any law to give a lower rate on stocks and bonds unless all stockholders will take an oath how much stocks and bonds they've got.

"There will be no more important problem before the next legislature than that of taxation reform. If the constitutional amendment upon the ballot in this election is approved it will enable the legislature, if controlled by the republican reactionaries as was the last legislature, to legalize tax dodging and to impose additional burdens upon the rent payer, the shop-keeper and the home owner who are now bearing an unjust proportion of the expenses of government.

"I have declared before the people in every part of the state that I shall veto any change in the taxation system unless compulsory returns are provided which would require the taxpayers to reveal under oath their hidden wealth.

"But where does Mr. McCall stand? Will he favor compulsory returns? Why is he silent? What power compels his silence?

"With this issue before the people, it is easy to understand how the large republican campaign fund has been collected. The barrel has already been opened. Hundreds of automobiles are moving across the state in 'circus processions.' Torchlight parades are being organized by paid workers in cities and towns. Money is being poured out as never before.

"But I remind these gentlemen of the republican machine that next Tuesday we are to have an election, and not an auction.

"Mr. McCall is innocently asking what is an 'invisible government.' I would suggest to him that he read the reports of the trial of the New Haven directors now being published in the daily papers with the story of the bribery of the legislators and the purchase of reactionary newspaper support.

"If he desires other information he should read the evidence in the Boston & Maine investigation taken before the public service commission of New Hampshire about a month ago.

"And if he wants more particular information as to its activities in Massachusetts I would refer him to the evidence in the 'special expenses' investigation before our own public service commission, which tells the story of thousands of dollars used directly and indirectly to influence legislation in this commonwealth.

"What about the increase in car fares? So far as the influence of any other goes, there will be no increase in rates until all the water is wrung out of the stock.

Governor Walsh also reviewed his legislation in the interest of the workman, his provision for widows and orphans, his bill for popular education under the auspices of the state, and he challenged Mr. McCall to declare whether he is in favor of such legislation or opposed. In conclusion he said: "The people know my record and I have been loyal. They will show their gratitude; they will refuse to go back to government by the few. I want you to do your part so that the nation may know that in Massachusetts we will have won a great victory for democracy.

At the close of his address he was cheered again and again and hundreds sang forwardly, shaking hands with him. It was well after the midnight hour when the thousands assembled began to disperse, and it was the opinion of all that it was the best rally ever.

Frederick W. Mansfield

Hon. Frederick W. Mansfield, former state treasurer, was the first speaker. He declared that in all probability half or one-third of the people present were republicans and progressives, and he was sorry, he said, that all were not republicans. He then said that to govern is not to make a matter of party and he would not make a plea for any party but would talk about the rights of man and plead for the candidate who has shown the greatest interest in human rights and the happiness of the people. "I am attorney for the American Federation of Labor," he said, "and I know in what party the ordinary citizens gets a fair show. The democratic party is the party of the people; the republican party is the party of the rich man, the party of the reactionary in politics, the party of special privilege. This year the republican party has thrown its lot in for the progress, but their pretended progress is forced on them by the democratic party as a ruse to get votes. I speak very especially to the progressives for I believe the definition of a progressive as given by a friend, 'A progressive is a democrat who is ashamed to own up to it.' The progress is not made by the party that they did not steal from the democratic party, or as somebody said once: 'Bryan went swimming and Roosevelt stole his clothes.' Mr. Mansfield then quoted from the records of Governors Draper and Bates contrasting such records with those of Governor Russell and Governor Walsh. He described the great work of our present governor as being essentially humanitarian, and told the people that in voting for Governor Walsh next Tuesday they will vote for themselves and their own best interests. He spoke in this connection, of the governor's fight for taxation reform, paying him a wonderful tribute and asking for his sweeping re-election.

Postmaster Meehan

Hon. John H. Meehan spoke in brief, making a vigorous plea for the policies of Governor Walsh and telling from experience of the pernicious spirit of the republican legislature in all relating to public rights.

Humphrey O'Sullivan

Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan made a rousing speech in which he described Mr. McCall as "a reactionary of the old type," basing his conviction on McCall's record. He told of the recent visit of Senator Gore of Oklahoma and the tribute which the distinguished statesman paid to the administration. He also went into a detailed analysis of some of the more important national measures, notably the currency bill. In closing he drew a bright picture of the future, saying "the resources of our country are limitless" and comparing the American situation with that of Europe.

Daniel J. Donahue

Daniel J. Donahue made a characteristic speech full of facts and witty allusions. He punctured the calamitous predictions of the republicans saying that prosperity is due more to skilled labor than to the tariff, and ridiculing the recent speech of Senator Harding of Ohio, who at the republican rally told a story of a certain Paris hat which gave Mr. Donahue a fine campaign argument for the democratic party.

In closing Mr. Donahue paid a warm tribute to Governor Walsh and the democratic party "which has worked for the uplift of the people."

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald

As Mr. Donahue concluded his address there was great commotion at the outskirts of the crowd and soon the cries of "Fitz" and "Fitzgerald" were heard. The only original John F. had arrived and the crowd was exultant. In a short time they were treated to a very eloquent address which, in part, follows:

"This wonderful crowd which I see here tonight is a splendid endorsement of the administration of your present governor and your next governor—David I. Walsh. He has been the people's governor in every proper sense of the word. In opposition to him is Mr. McCall, who voted for the tariff bill that President Taft signed only under protest and the signing of which more than anything else defeated Mr. Taft overwhelmingly. The candidate of the republican party voted for the bill in all its stages, taking orders from the bankers and the extreme protectionists. He is not the friend of the ordinary citizen and, if elected, he will take his orders from the corporate interests instead of from the people as Governor Walsh has done.

Mr. Fitzgerald here sketched the story of Roosevelt's campaign contributions from Morgan, Harriman & Co. as an illustration of how far in contrast the career of President Wilson. He went into the early career of Gov-

Highway Commission Counting Autos—Annexation Movement Starting Again

The state highway commission is gathering valuable data concerning the wear and tear of the state highway throughout the county and for some time past over 20 men and women have been employed in counting the number of automobiles that go by a certain point on each road, and the employee is requested in his or her report to give full information as to whether or not the auto that is registered is carrying a truck, business vehicle or runabout.

For this work on the state highway between Lowell and Lawrence, Mrs. A. Belle Isherwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Flanders, who conducts a variety store at Belle Grove, has been hired and she is now ready to submit her report to the proper authorities. Mrs. Isherwood started her work last August and for a whole week as arranged she kept tabs on all machines going over the road, her observations being made from the interior of her father's store. It happened that during the week she was on duty there was considerable rain, but nevertheless from a Sunday morning until the following Saturday evening, she counted 2500 machines that went by the store. The young woman was on duty from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. and during her meal hours her place in the store was taken by her father. During this month she counted 3500 machines, but it is believed had the count been taken during the month of July the number would have been much larger.

The same work is being done on the various state highways throughout the county and this will give the commission an idea as to the wear and tear of the road. The motorcycles or horse drawn vehicles are not included in the count.

Annexation

After a rest of several months the residents of Elmore, Kenwood, Brookside and Belle Grove are again taking up the important subject of annexation and the writer while conversing with Mr. H. A. Flanders, secretary of the Dracut District Nine Improvement association, was informed that a meeting will be called by the association to advance the movement.

It will be remembered that last year the talk of annexation was dropped after a very interesting article on annexation from the pen of Francis W. Quinn, Esq., had been published in the columns of The Sun. In this article Mr. Quinn related his experience when Belvidere was annexed to Lowell and he informed the residents of Dracut that some cash would be required to carry the project through, inasmuch as the services of a surveyor and an attorney will be needed. At that time these who are interested in annexation were informed that they could do nothing toward that end unless a bill was presented at the opening of the legislature.

Mr. Flanders said the promoters of the annexation movement are as deeply interested as they were last year and at the meeting of the association a committee will be appointed to raise funds in order to make a survey of the district to be annexed. Then the matter will be turned over to the representative elected from Dracut and he will be asked to introduce a bill permitting Lowell to annex the portion of Dracut also, and permitting the town of Dracut to dispose of a certain district. The meeting will be held at the nursery of J. J. McMahon at Brookside and the date and time will be announced later.

Tridium

A tridium in honor of the Holy Rosary is being conducted at St. Mary's church, Collinsville. The ceremonies opened Wednesday evening and will be brought to a close Sunday morning at the parish mass.

The tridium is being conducted by Rev. Thomas J. Golden, first assistant pastor of the Lady of Lourdes church, Jamaica Plain, who is recognized as a very able pulpit orator. Masses are being celebrated every morning at 8 and 7:30 o'clock and at the close of each service Rev. Golden delivers a brief sermon. The evening services are being held at 7:30 o'clock. Saturday will be devoted to confessions and Sunday morning at the 7:30 o'clock mass the members of the Holy Name society, Children of Mary sodality, and the Ladies' sodality will receive communion in a body.

Fire Department

Chief Frank H. Gunther of the Dracut fire department stated yesterday that arrangements had been made for the installation of a generator at the pumping station on Hopkins street and the Navy Yard and Collinsville, while a new set of batteries will also be installed in order to reinforce the current for the fire alarm system. With the new generator and the batteries the current will then be strong enough to carry successfully the alarm through the Navy Yard and the Central village.

Chief Gunther has completed his work of figuring on the cost of extending the water system to Collinsville and this will reach approximately $50,000. These figures include the installation of a reservoir on what is known as Waterbury Hill near Mud pond, the highest elevation in the town, and which is next in height to Rock Hill.

On account of the heavy rains during last summer, the wells are well supplied with water and it is said that there is a lack of interest in the bill for the extension of the water system to Collinsville.

Merrimack Woolen Co.

Business at the Merrimack Woolen mill at Navy Yard is rushing and double shifts have been running for some time past. The weaving departments especially are being rushed and the looms are kept busy night and day. The company is now filling a large order for overcoats for foreign country and it is expected before this order is completed more will be received.

Beaver Brook Mill

Conditions are also very good at the Beaver Brook mill and some of the departments are kept running overtime. There is a large complement of help at work and future conditions are very bright.

Social and Entertainment

A delightful social and entertainment was conducted Thursday night at the St. Anne's mission at Elmore, the affair being for the benefit of the chapel, which was erected but a short time ago. A musical and literary program was given and general dancing was enjoyed.

The attendance was large and all spent a most enjoyable evening. Ice cream and cake being served at intermission by the ladies of the mission, headed by Mrs. Lester Pheneey. The entertainment program consisted of readings by Fred Timmins; vocal selections, J. C. Wilby of Lowell, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Wilby. Other musical numbers were given and dancing was enjoyed till a seasonable hour. The affair was in charge of a committee headed by W. G. Stewart.

Attending Convention

Mrs. Erdle Page, Mrs. J. Curley of the Parent-Teacher association of the Kenwood school and Misses Garvey, Frank Powers and Gallagher, teachers at the Kenwood school, are attending the sixth annual convention of the Massachusetts branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, which is being held at Quincy.

The convention which is being held at the high school hall opened yesterday and closed today.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Flanders of Belle Grove have returned from a pleasant week's stay at the resort, R. I., where they were the guests of relatives.

Rev. and Mrs. Ernest C. Bartlett of the Centre village are spending the week at Intervale, N. H., where they are the guests of relatives and friends.

POLICE COURT SESSION

The case of Charles P. Harrington, charged with a violation of the automobile laws in that he left the engine of his machine running on Gorham street for more than 15 minutes, was the chief feature of this forenoon's session of the police court. So confining were the stories told by the different sides that Judge Enright refused to make a finding today and continued the case until Monday.

During the trial, Judge Enright, Attorney Donahue and Deputy Downey went down to Market street where they were given a demonstration of starting the engine of an automobile. Patrolman Farley testified that about 6:10 o'clock on the evening of October 11 he found the engine of an automobile running in front of his house at the corner of Gorham and Keene streets. He said that he waited for about 10 minutes and then went to the house of Harrington to come out and stop it. About five minutes afterward, he said, the driver came out in an angry mood. "You can get 20 more cops and can't convict me," is said to be the statement made. Patrolman Connelley and O'Keefe testified that their attention was called to the car by Patrolman Farley. They corroborated the evidence about Harrington's remarks.

The defense contended that the machine was locked and left on Keene street and that somebody played a joke by starting the engine and pushing it around on Gorham street, where it was found by the officers.

"I can't understand this man's actions," said Judge Enright, "and the house was not questioned by the officers. I am not ready to make a finding today."

An Assault Case

An assault said to have occurred in front of Saunders market a few days ago last night was aired in court today when Bridget Fitzgerald was accused of assault and battery upon Albert H. Cooper. The complainant testified that he is employed as a clerk at the Saunders market and on the night of the assault saw the woman having an argument with another clerk. During her conversation, it seems, somebody alleged that was drunk and Mrs. Fitzgerald, who is not a drinking woman, became angered and struck Cooper, who was pointed out to her by her daughter as the man who made the remark. Cooper claimed that his glasses were broken and the case was continued one week. In the meantime Mrs. Fitzgerald will make restitution for the damage done. Hon. James E. O'Connell appeared for the defendant.

Alleged Larceny

George Rootes was present on a complaint charging him with the larceny of $50 from Stravos Kirtas, on April 26 last. Kirtas claimed that George was to marry his daughter, but last April and was larceny the money for that purpose. During the trial it was shown that a note had been given to the complainant and the court decided it was a matter for the civil court.

Helen Costa and Antonio Petra were accused of a statutory offense and each was found guilty. Mrs. Costa is the mother of 15 children, several of whom are married. Petra was fined $50 and the woman given a suspended sentence of one year in jail. George E. Toye appeared for the woman.

Thomas Fay, vagrancy, was committed to the state farm. Catherine McKee was sentenced to three months in jail. There were a few releases.

FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD

Father Tells How Boy Was Restored to Health and Strength

We have always told the people of Lowell that Vinol is a wonderful body builder for ailing children. Here is more proof of the fact:

J. L. Alburtz of Miami, Fla., says: "Our little boy was puny and cross from the time he was born, and when I knew how to handle him. When he was three years old he was weak and sick and would hardly live with him, and we could not get him to eat anything. A friend asked us to try Vinol. We did so and you should see the change it has made in him. He is now a good-natured, healthy youngster, ready to eat at any time, and we cannot praise Vinol enough."

Vinol is especially efficient in building up puny, weak, ailing children, because of the real red liver extractives, tonics of iron and beef peptone which it contains, and as it is without oil or grease, children love to take it.

NO. CHELMSFORD NEWS

What is Going on in the Village— Electric Worker Had Narrow Escape—Other Items

The joint session of the Massachusetts state highway commission and the Middlesex county commissioners at the court house in East Cambridge yesterday morning, held for the purpose of receiving petitions for road construction, was attended by a delegation from the village and Chelmsford Centre. They urged the building of a state highway on what is known as the Boston road from the Billerica-Bedford road to Chelmsford Centre. Among those present were the members of the board of selectmen, Dr. Frank Small, A. Heady Park, and Karl M. Perham; also C. George Armstrong, Charles Nichols, Charles E. Bartlett, Harry L. Parkhurst, Walter Perham, William B. Northrup, J. Clark Osterhout and others. The result of the conference was very satisfactory to the delegation and the county commissioners have guaranteed a further hearing to be held at the court house in Lowell on December 20.

The sidewalk facing the residence of Mark Ingham, agent of the Silesia mills, is being improved by the placing of much needed curbstones. The roadway in front of the post-office is in very bad shape and should be put in good condition before the snow flies. In order to do this, a layer of about three inches of coal dust will have to be removed from the top of the roadway and substituted by gravel or other serviceable road building material.

It is reported on good authority that John McManimon is likely to be made postmaster. The term of the present postmaster, Charles S. Scribner, expires within a very short time.

Four of Hearts
The third annual social and dancing party conducted by the Four of Hearts in the town hall Thursday evening was the means of attracting a very large gathering from the village. The fact that the young women who form part of the "Four of Hearts" mostly come from Lowell resulted also in a very good number attending from the city as well as several from the surrounding towns.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the black and orange of the Halloween season prevailing in the color scheme. Gilmore's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing program which was enjoyed by all in attendance. Broderick's orchestra furnished music for the dancing.

Silesia Mills
Business at the Silesia mills continues good and a full complement of help is steadily employed. An old building in the mill yard is being renovated and will be used as a garage for the company's auto trucks.

H. Stanley Chrysler, president and manager of the North Chelmsford Machine & Supply Co., informed the writer that business is good and the plant is running to capacity days.

Former Residents
After an absence of several years, Patrick and Frank McCuskey are now paying a visit to relatives in the village. Since leaving the village they went to Montana where they own a prosperous farming business. They will return to the western states after a short stay with their relatives.

Schools
Yesterday having been set apart as convention day for the teachers, the school sessions were suspended, and the students were given a full holiday. School work is progressing satisfactorily, according to Supt. Trubey, despite the fact that the school rooms are somewhat crowded. Unsatisfactory conditions are expected to be remedied within a very short time.

Woods a Menace
A strip of woodland known as "Barren's Wood," located near the village cemetery has been the subject of comment for some time among those who have occasion to pass by it. A woman or girl, it is said, cannot walk by the dark stretch at night without being insulted by young men, and in the daytime it is a rendezvous for crap shooters.

Congregational Church
Tomorrow at the Congregational church the sermon at the regular service will be preached by the pastor, Rev. Franklin Reeves. The various church societies are very busy making arrangements for a number of social and religious events to be held within a short time.

St. Alban's Mission
Rev. Wilson Waters of Chelmsford Centre will be the preacher at the service to be held at St. Alban's mission tomorrow. There will also be special music by an augmented choir.

His Life Saved
An employee of the Lowell Electric Light corporation, whose name could not be learned, miraculously escaped death on Tuesday of this week when he fell three stories from the roof of the Silesia mills where he was engaged running a cable. The accident happened, it is said, when the length of cable running from a reel in the mill yard to a stinging he was standing on was run into by a horse driven by an employee of the mills. The man had a good hold on the wire coil when the horse's feet became tangled and he was pulled off the staking. The staking was also pulled down. Both the man and the stage went hurtling through the air, but fortunately the staking landed first. About half way down the man landed on the cable, breaking his fall somewhat and he then continued downwards and landed on the back of the horse which caused the trouble. He then rolled off to the ground. He picked himself up without assistance, and although somewhat shocked was not injured beyond a few minor scratches.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

OPERA HOUSE
With five big acts of vaudeville and as many reels of the latest photoplay features, the Opera House on Sunday afternoon and night will offer a gala program and one of the best Sunday entertainments that Lowell has seen in many years. The program has been selected carefully from the best vaudeville headliners while the pictures include only the latest and best releases. The Exposition Five, a singing and musical act par excellence is certain to "clean up" using the theatrical term. McGowan and Cheney, Harry and Louis, the original cabaret boys, with their new songs and a piano are a sure fire hit every where and will have to respond to many encores. Tommy Bliss, assisted by Delson, has many new songs and stories. O'Neill and Cosgrove make up a dandy singing duo. Evans and Harden will furnish many laughs with their songs and songs. Seats are now selling for both performances. Get yours early. Phone 261.

"The Family Cupboard" that wonderful domestic drama, another blue ribbon winner among the recent big successes scored on the American stage is the offering of the Emerson players at the Opera House all next week and the early advance sale of seats indicates a record breaking week. It is a play with a stronger punch than either "Within the Law" or "Bought and Paid For," and for real excitement, furnishes thrills aplenty. It is a play that all parents should see—a play that all parents should send their children to see. It teaches a great lesson and has a moral.

The play tells the story of the Nelson family. It is a drama of contemporary things, dealing with a phase of modern domestic life, somewhat startling perhaps but withal so true that the course of the Nelson family, a group representative of the better class, showing the consequences that are sure to follow when money has replaced love in the home and when the husband seeks elsewhere for the affection he does not receive from his wife. And running through this drama is a rich vein of comedy delightfully new and amusing the whole play with cheery optimism of these likeable characters. Few indeed are the plays that carry a message as potent and

"The Family Cupboard" has been secured by special arrangement with William A. Brady himself, after several weeks of touring and is limited to one week only. Seats are now selling for the entire week, so make reservations early. Phone 261 for seats.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The specially built program for the Keith theatre, tomorrow afternoon and evening, will be a pleaser in every particular. The management is putting forth every effort to give to audiences the biggest Sunday show ever brought out locally. It has been found possible to use the orchestra of the Midnight Rollers for a program of well liked numbers. A new singing trip has been located. The three who will constitute this team are Francis, Ray and McHugh. Other specialties will be contributed by Ben Creighton & Co., Albert Hawthorne and Jack Hines, Sylvester & Vance and Ruby Wallace. The orchestra of the theatre will render a specially arranged concert program. Among the pictures to be shown is a wonderful three part one named "The Path of the Rainbow."

Next week's big show will be headed by no less a celebrity than that famed Samoan swimmer and pearl diver, Odia. The parentage of this wonderful water-woman is shrouded in mystery. She knows very little about her forebears. Were it not for the kindly influence of missionaries working among the natives of the far-off Pacific archipelago she might even now be one of the motley crew of beach combbers that frequent the shores of the little known Isles. Odia does know that her parents were English, and were aboard a trading schooner which was lost during a Samoan storm. She and her mother were rescued from the waves, the latter succumbing shortly afterwards. Her father, the master of the vessel, died battling in the water. A tiny white girl was like a new toy to the simple kindly savages of the coast village, and she was soon the adopted daughter of the head chieftain. Natives of Samoa, in early childhood are much like web-footed fowl. The children are permitted to toll about the sun-kissed beaches, and it is not natural that they soon develop into wonderful swimmers. And Odia was like the children of the Samoan natives. She learned their water sports. She became amphibious, and as she grew older she became the champion surfer of the island, and later her abilities were used in diving for pearls, for Odia was informed that everybody on the island must, at certain seasons of the year, dive deeply into the ocean in quest of the prized gems. Next week she will do some rare diving at the Keith theatre. She will have with her seals and a whole aquarium of strange fish. On Tuesday and Thursday evenings there will be special exhibitions, one for boys and girls and the other for adults, and special prizes will be awarded. Further notices of these will appear.

Charles Mack & Co., who are pleasantly remembered for their vivid Irish sketch called "Come Back to Erin" will appear in a new comedy, which is guaranteed to bring forth a laugh every thirty seconds. Mr. Mack will appear in the part of "Col. Connolly," while the other players will be Charles B. Nelson as "Mike Donovan" and Etta Bartedo as "Nellie Connolly." The title of the new comedy is "A Friend-ly Call." Lulu Coates will appear with her three crackpots in a melange of singing, dancing and acrobatics. Danieles and General are boy prodigies, one playing the violin and the other the piano. Their program will be composed wholly of classics. The Four Charles will entertain with comedy novelty juggling and gymnastics and the act will close with a transformation scene. Bernard & Meyers will present a skit based upon the character of the cab-driver and the "fare." It will prove to be a scream. Low Fitzgibbons is one of the few absolute masters of the xylophone and he plays even the most difficult of rhapsodies. Good seats for all performances may be obtained in advance at the box office. Phone 25.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The final presentation will be given at the performance today at the Merrimack Square theatre of the splendid bill of pictures for the latter half of this week which consists of two five act feature plays and several other reels of high class pictures. Jane Cowl will appear today for the last time in the five act drama, "The Garden of Lies." Those who appreciate the highest in motion picture acting, will also be seen today for the last time in the other five act picture, "The Secret Sin," produced by the Paramount Picture Corp. The comedy for today is of an extremely funny nature and is very enjoyable, while the Paramount Travi-di pictures present many interesting views of foreign countries. The Sunday concert tomorrow, which is continuous, starting at 1:30 p. m. will consist of a number of high class vaudeville hits and an equal variety of entertaining pictures. Those who are in quest of an enjoyable recreation tomorrow afternoon and evening are assured of a pleasant time at the Sunday concert at the Merrimack Square theatre.

OWL THEATRE

Florence La Radie, in "The Price of Her Silence," a Mutual masterpiece in four parts, was well received at the Owl theatre yesterday. This powerful film will be shown at all the shows again today and with it will also be seen a Keystone comedy and four other first-run Mutual releases.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

The following marriage intentions have been filed at the city clerk's office since the last were published:

EX-GOV. STEWART DEAD

VERMONT'S GRAND OLD MAN NEARLY 90—SERVED IN CONGRESS, ALSO AS U. S. SENATOR

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Oct. 30.—Ex-Gov. John Walcott Stewart, Vermont's "Grand Old Man," many times honored with election to the highest offices within the gift of the state, died at his home at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, shortly after returning from an automobile ride, from heart failure, doubtless induced by the natural decline with advanced age.

Middlebury's venerable citizen lacked but 25 days of completing 90 years, and while his career covered a generation past, he lived until the last in the present with his characteristic optimism.

Ex-Gov. Stewart's health had failed perceptibly within a few weeks past, and his strength had lessened daily. However, he had enjoyed his automobile rides about town and apparently had suffered no ill-effects from the ride yesterday afternoon as he entered his library upon his return.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Since his retirement from public office he had spent much of his time winters in southern California and with his son in Colorado Springs. John Walcott Stewart was born in Middlebury, Vt., Nov. 21, 1825, a son of Ira and Elizabeth (Hubbell) Stewart. He graduated from Middlebury college. In 1850 he married Emma, daughter of Philip Battell. To them were born five children, three of whom survive. Mrs. Stewart died nearly 20 years ago.

Mr. Stewart was admitted to the Vermont bar and began the practice of his profession in his native town. He followed his profession alone until 1854, when he formed a partnership with Ex-United States Senator Phelps. Mr. Stewart was made a director of the Middlebury bank, now the National Bank of Middlebury, in 1858, and for several years prior to 1881 was president of the institution.

He was a strong republican. He represented Middlebury in the General Assembly in 1856, '57, '64, '65, '66 and '67, serving as speaker of the house of representatives during the last three sessions. In 1861 and 1862 he represented Addison county in the state senate.

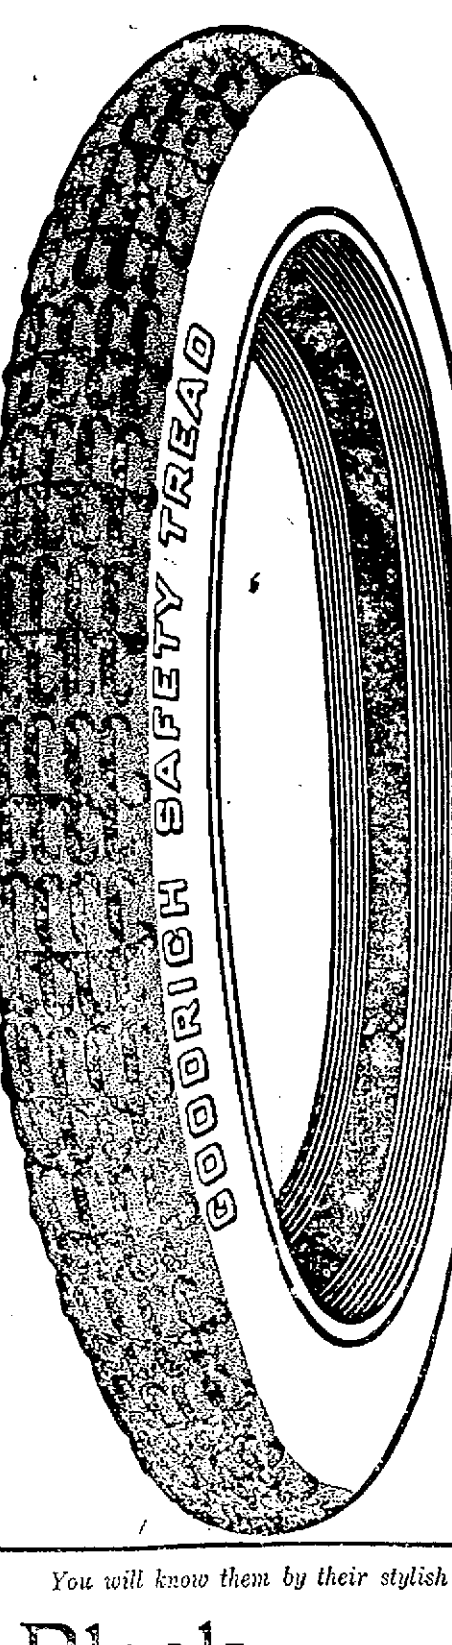

Mr. Stewart was governor of Vermont from 1879 to 1872, being the first to be elected for the biennial term. In 1876 he returned to the lower branch of the General Assembly as a member from Middlebury. In 1882 he was elected to congress from the 1st district and was re-elected to the three following congresses.

On the death of United States Senator Redfield Proctor, Gov. Stewart was appointed by Gov. Fletcher D. Proctor to serve until the election of a successor by the legislature from May to October, when the legislature elected Carroll S. Page of Hyde Park.

HALLOWEEN PARTY
A delightful Halloween party was held by the Lowell Caledonian club in Post 155 hall on Central street. An enjoyable entertainment was presented, including readings by Harry Leavitt, and songs by James E. Donnelly, John Dickenson and Lloyd Kirkpatrick. The accompanists were Dr. E. O. Tabor and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, and Dr. Tabor played a piano solo. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed. The committee on arrangements included: Andrew Livingston, Mrs. John Crawford, Miss Elizabeth L. Mitchell and John MacDougall.

FAIR-LIST TIRES

THE B. F. GOODRICH CO.
Akron, Ohio.

WHEN you take your Shoes off tonight, do this:—Bear your weight on your right Foot and, without lifting it off the floor, press it forward and backward firmly.

Then observe that only the bony and muscular Structure of your Foot moves forward and backward, while its Sole stays fixed on the floor.

That demonstrates the rolling motion of flesh and muscle, the elastic Cushion quality which reduces friction in walking, and prevents slipping (backward, forward, or sideways).

It supplies that CLING quality, which gives Traction without Friction.

It protects the Bones and Sinews of the Foot against the Wear and Tear of action, as a lubricant protects Metal moving parts, while providing the wonderful "Barefoot" hold on slippery surfaces.

CONSIDER now the means by which Tires have been given maximum Traction,—i. e., by means of a "sand-papery" texture in the Rubber of their Anti-Skid Treads. Assuredly such Tires do give Traction.

But, every time the Brakes are put on, to make such Tires grip the road, the relatively hard, unyielding, and comparatively brittle, texture of the Rubber in their Treads causes these Treads to grind away on the pavement, to WEAR OUT fast at the point of contact.

The sudden efficiency of their grinding-Traction also tugs so sharply on the Rubber Adhesive between the layers of Fabric in Tire as to separate these layers.

There is little "give" to them—just as there is little "slide" to them.

So, they gain Traction at the expense of Mileage.

Naturally such Tires require a great BULK of such Rubber in order to deliver reasonable Mileage before worn out.

And, therein they differ radically from GOODRICH "Barefoot" Tires.

Because,—

—The Safety-Tread on Goodrich Tires is made of a very unusual, secret, and exclusive Compound, which we will here call "Hyper-Rubber."

It is much lighter, in weight, than the Rubber used in other makes of Tires, being free from the "sandpappy" ingredients that are heaviest and inert.

Observe, that every pound saved on the weight of Tires (or any part of a Car below the Springs) is equal to a saving of 30 pounds when supported above the Springs (ask your Engineer).

Its lightness, however, is secondary to its STRETCH, its enormous STRENGTH and Longevity.

AND here is how it acts in Automobiling,—

—When the weight of the Car bears on this clinging "Hyper-Rubber" Tread, and the power is applied to go ahead or reverse, the stretch in the Sole (or Tread) of the Goodrich Tire acts as a sort of Lubricant between the Fabric Structure of the Tire and the Road.

Then the Hyper-Rubber "Toes," of the Goodrich Safety-Tread Tire, CLING to the pavement (instead of grinding against it), just as your Bare Foot would cling to a slippery surface—without Grind, and so, with the minimum of Frictional Heat or Wear for maximum Traction.

Goodrich "Hyper-Rubber" is made into Goodrich Motor Cycle, and Bicycle, Tires, as well as into Goodrich Rubber Boots, Over-Shoes, Soles and Heels.

CHANGE THE FIRE LAWS

The terrible calamity at Peabody that has thrilled the state with horror and compassion has aroused a discussion of our fire-prevention and building laws that should not be permitted to die down until a repetition of the tragedy is made impossible. Out of the mass of conflicting statements comes the fact that in all main essentials the law was complied with, and yet in this compliance with the law there was every possibility that instead of 20, the list of victims might have been 200. When, in a new building, built according to the law and sanctioned by the public authorities, a fire may break out so suddenly, gain headway so swiftly and thoroughly cut off the hope of escape for helpless little ones, it seems time that the law be changed.

Discussion of what might have been can now bring nothing but sadness and yet it is necessary that every phase of the matter be investigated deeply. Deputy Chief Neal of the state police, acting head of the state police department and for years the state fire marshal, says that a slight rearrangement of two flights of stairs would have made it possible for all the children to escape. From the lurid accounts of the fire, it would appear that neither the doors nor the stairs nor the corridors were so arranged as to afford protection, and yet in all probability the school was quite as safe as the average school building in this state whether public or private. When such things can exist under the law, the law should be made over for the protection of the school children and in the interest of the state.

An examination of the state regulations "relating to the erection, alteration and inspection of schoolhouses" reveals some curious inconsistencies. While the need for safety is emphasized in every clause of the law, fire escapes are not strictly required. Instead, the law demands certain supposedly safe exits, and where a fire escape has been erected, it "may be considered as equivalent to a required exit." Even if there are more than two floors, it would seem that the law simply requires corridors, stairs and doors of certain dimensions and of a certain number, but what use were doors and corridors in Peabody? Most of those who escaped were forced to jump from the windows of the different schoolrooms. The blocking up of the front door was a terrible misfortune, but we are to assume that the front door and all the other doors were built in compliance with the state regulations.

All who have spoken of the Peabody fire with any degree of authority seem to have agreed that the children would have gotten out safely if they were not scared by the sight of fire on the first floor and thrown into a panic. This would be likely to happen in any school and it would be foolish to assume that hundreds of boys and girls of such tender years would walk out calmly through smoke and stifling air, especially if they see the creeping flames as they did in Peabody. Of what use are laws governing corridors and exits in such a case? With hundreds of young children in a struggling, screaming mass it would be next to impossible to avoid disaster, and where children have fled out during school fires, they have rarely been brought in touch with the actual fire.

The only safe provision in Peabody would have been an adequate fire escape running around the building or at least two sides of it on upper floors and of a type suitable for school purposes. If the drill had led to a fire escape, the children would not have seen the flames and there would not have been such a chance of panic. In all probability the entire school would have been safe long before the flames burst over the pitiable group inside the front door. It will be strange if the sequel to the conflagration does not bring about a legal mandate for fire escapes on every school building in Massachusetts. The Peabody fire is proof positive that the present laws are not adequate.

VOTE FOR GOV. WALSH

It is much to be desired that the vote next Tuesday will be heavy and that Governor Walsh will be re-elected by a sweeping majority. This is in the hands of the voters to determine, and it is our conviction that Governor Walsh will be retained in office by the people of this state which he has served so faithfully and well during the past two years. In giving him a third term the people will follow an established precedent for Massachusetts has been quick to recognize merit and to reward sincerity.

Governor Walsh should be re-elected not only because of what he has accomplished but in order that he may continue the reforms to which he is pledged. The democratic platform is a positive document full of progressive principles but on the whole it only embodies policies and principles for which our governor has fought strenuously for the past two years. Many of these reforms have been blocked by a republican legislature but after the exposures of the present campaign, it is not likely that the legislature would again so thoroughly oppose every movement for the good of the public.

Governor Walsh should be elected

for other reasons also. He should be elected as a rebuke to the republican party which has been most unfair to him during the campaign as Mr. McCall could not find a strong issue in the record of our chief executive, so indirect insinuations were resorted to. These were refuted fully and the republicans then fell back upon attacking the democratic administration at Washington. Wishing to be judged by his record, Governor Walsh did not hide behind the mantle of the national administration, but he courageously and openly discussed phases of state politics that must have been very uncomfortable for his chief opposing candidate. It is hard to believe that Massachusetts will take the advice of Mr. McCall and vote against Governor Walsh in order to hurt President Wilson or help the reactionary party of which McCall is the representative. The plea was futile and it ought to be answered by voter intelligence by an overwhelming vote for Governor Walsh.

It cannot be denied that Governor Walsh has been a good governor of the state. When he first ran for office opposition to him was largely personal and it was stated that he would not be fair or courageous. After two years in the public eye, he has proved to be so eminently fair and so courageous in all relating to the welfare of the public that his opponents do not recall old prophecies. They have to admit that he is sincere and well-meaning and all fair men will admit that he had been a progressive champion of popular rights and a friend to the great masses of the people. His work for taxation reform, for popular education, for compensation to the injured, for pensions for the needy, for the farmer and factory worker has set him apart as one of the greatest governors this state has ever had. He has been really a friend of the people and the people should show their loyalty to him on next Tuesday.

Voters of Lowell: Do not neglect your duty next Tuesday and do not neglect the opportunity to stand by Governor Walsh, a chief executive who has not been controlled by party or selfish group but who has done his duty faithful with the needs of the people in mind. Whether you be republican, progressive or prohibitionist, you cannot gainsay the fact that Governor Walsh is the most desirable candidate. After a strenuous campaign waged on the republican side with desperate intensity, Governor Walsh stands out without a stain on his name or official reputation. Vote for merit, for sincerity, for ability, for honesty, for genuine progress—vote for Governor David I. Walsh.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

In answer to some attempts of the republicans to swing the support of the Massachusetts Anti-saloon league has issued a circular under the caption: "The Truth About the Liquor Transportation Bill and Where the Responsibility For Its Defeat Belongs." This circular explains Governor Walsh's veto of the liquor transportation bill and shows how by clever political manipulation the bill has been made useless by a republican amendment. The league gives great credit to Governor Walsh for his honesty and sincerity and places in contrast the evasiveness of the republican legislative leaders who found some means to kill every bill presented by the anti-liquor interests. As the circular says: "These bills have been systematically juggled by the committees to whom they were referred, given 'leave to withdraw' and summarily killed by invoking all the political tricks that are possible in legislative procedure." Governor Walsh is fully vindicated by those best able to state the real facts in the case, and the Anti-saloon league warns Massachusetts that the republicans are not sincere friends of temperance.

NO PEACE PARLEYS

Owing to the recent discouragement in the Balkans and the expected conscription crisis, there has been considerable agitation in England. This has been reflected in parliament where several pointed questions have been asked the government. The illness of Premier Asquith has prevented a satisfactory announcement of the government's policy, but David Lloyd George has spoken for the nation in declaring that there is no weakening of the original decision. Lloyd George declares that England does not intend to talk peace until the initiative is taken.

by a defeated Germany. This declaration will serve to banish the fears that may have cropped out here and there, especially when coupled with the fact that recruiting is better and that a considerable force has been sent to stop the Teutonic drive to Constantinople. Though England may reveal domestic differences and descend to factional wranglings, all parties are agreed on the fundamental necessity for courage, hope and a deathless determination to win.

STREET FLUSHING

Those who have been forced to breathe our city dust for the past few weeks will hail with joy the announcement that the board of health has secured the consent of Commissioner Morse to flush the down-town streets twice weekly. An attempt was made to have the fire department attend to the work but it properly belongs to the street department and so is in the right hands. Since the fall weather set in the dust has been far worse than in summer, and an agitation to have the streets flushed even more often than twice weekly would find popular support. Many of the larger cities are discarding the practice of sweeping the streets and are depending on nightly or daily washing for results. Since the residential sections have been treated to oil coating the dust has not been so troublesome, and it is to be hoped that the determination to flush the streets of the business section will have a like beneficial effect.

NOTE TO ENGLAND

It is said unofficially that the long-promised note to England protesting against its interference with American commerce is now on its way by special messenger. It has been in preparation for months and is said to cover every phase of the controversy. If so it is a long document for England has made very plausible answers to our former protests and some points are frankly debatable. It has long been seen that the standards of international law cannot be applied to this war owing to the lack of precedent covering some of its phases, but the great principles are immutable and the stand of America is for principle. The note was delayed deliberately until the main contentions with Germany were settled, and there is now no other large issue to interfere with the discussion by both governments. It is anticipated that England will compromise so as to palliate the public opinion of America.

No Excitement

John was grieving because he had no gift for mother's birthday.

"Do not quarrel with little sister all day," suggested grandmother. "That would be the best gift she could have."

John agreed.

"Can't you see how much mother enjoyed your gift, John?" asked grandmother at night. "Why don't you do this every day?"

John drew a breath that came from his very boots.

"I'd rather lie, grandma, than live like this every day!" he said fervently. —Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Revenge

'Twas worth the pangs of shame I've had
When we have disagreed
And I have taken grounds from which
He's forced me to recede.
For often I have had to yield,
Thus giving great delight
To that provoking man who's sure
That he is always right.

I've yielded many, many times,
For once a poor grace I could,
I never kept my temper as A Christian person should.

And so it was a special joy
To down that man, that cock-sure man,
And prove him in the wrong!

—Somerville Journal.

Two Temples

A builder built a temple:
He wrought it with grace and skill,
Pillars and groins and arches,
All fashioned to work his will.
And men said, as they saw its beauty,
Great is thy skill, O builder!
Thy fame shall endure for aye!"

A mother built a temple
With infinite loving care,
Planning each arch with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.

None praised her unceasing effort,
But the temple the mother built
For the temple the mother built
Was unseen by the eye of man.

None is the builder's temple,
Crumbled into the dust,
Low lies each stately pillar,
Food for consuming rust.

But the temple the mother built
Will last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple
Was a child's immortal soul.

—Hattie Vose Hall.

High Cost of Sickness

It costs a good deal more to be ill now than it did before the war, that is if medicine is to be used. An instance of this was noted a few days ago by a letterman, who was called upon to make a purchase of medicine for a member of the family. A prescription which formerly he had paid 25 cents to have filled, he was this time called upon to

SCORE OF CHILDREN DIED IN FIRE WHICH DESTROYED PEABODY SCHOOL

PUTTING OUT FIRE

Nineteen little girls were burned to death and two girls died from injuries when fire swept through St. John's parochial school at Peabody, Mass., with such rapidity that several hundred pupils became jammed inside the front entrance in a mass, fighting blindly to escape the flames and smoke. Before the police and firemen were able to burst open the doors eight or ten had fallen victims.

Mr. Bird, a resolution, offered by Raymond P. Delano of Dorchester, calling upon Mr. Bird to publicly repudiate the "mistaken alliance into which he has been betrayed," and urging all other former progressives to return "to the only party that really believes in government by and for the people, and to the party that regards its platform as a solemn contract with the people and not a mere device for catching the unwary voters." was unanimously adopted by the meeting.

The resolve was accepted on the ground that a republican newspaper of western Massachusetts conducted a canvass of the republican candidates for the legislature and found only 25 out of 250 candidates canvassed who said they proposed to stand for the constitutional convention plank in the republican platform and as this is the plank which Mr. Bird has been urging the progressives to accept as a substitute for the initiative and referendum, in spite of all past experience "of the unreliability of republican pre-election promises; having also urged this plank in place of all other specific governmental reforms, which he has in past years joined with us so insistently upon as the only means of purifying our politics, and overthrowing the secret rule of selfish interests."

Inasmuch as Mr. Bird, publicly declared that the concessions in the republican platform must be beyond question genuine and binding, in order to induce him to work for Mr. McCall and to support him as the republican candidate, "thereby working with those leaders that he has so often exposed and denounced," the resolution was offered.

LOSS OF $350,000

Fire Swept Through Large Storehouse at Biddeford, Maine

BIDDEFORD, Me., Oct. 30.—A loss estimated at approximately $350,000 was caused by fire which swept through half of the large storehouse of the Pepperell Manufacturing Co., early today, destroying several thousand bales of raw cotton and much of the finished product. Its origin was attributed either to spontaneous combustion or to the unobserved dropping of a spark into a bale of cotton before it was placed in the building. One fireman was badly hurt by falling from a ladder.

The fire started on the third floor of the five-story brick structure which was divided into six sections, each separated from the next one by a fire wall. Three of these sections were burned out. It is believed little damage was caused to the product stored in the other three. The flames were so threatening to the remainder of the plant and other surrounding property that apparatus was summoned from Saco, Portland and Old Orchard and the fire companies of several local mills also assisted in fighting the blaze and wetting down wooden buildings in the vicinity. It was several hours before the fire was brought under control.

THE AMERICAN INDIAN

Interesting Talk on the Red Man by One Who Has Had Much Experience with the Indians in the West

"The American Aborigines" was the subject of a very interesting illustrated lecture by Rev. W. A. Petzoldt at the First Baptist church last evening. Mr. Petzoldt comes from Pueblo, Col., and has worked among the Indians of the western states for the past 12 years.

Mr. Petzoldt described the Indians as he has known them, the Crow in particular. They do not read the Declinator or the Ladies' Home Journal, he said, and they live in the open on the ground floor. None of them will ever die with nervous prostration, he said. "The fashions followed by the women are not up-to-date. They know almost nothing about the outside world, and the speaker doubted very much that any of them knew anything whatever about the present war in Europe. They could not comprehend it at all, if they did."

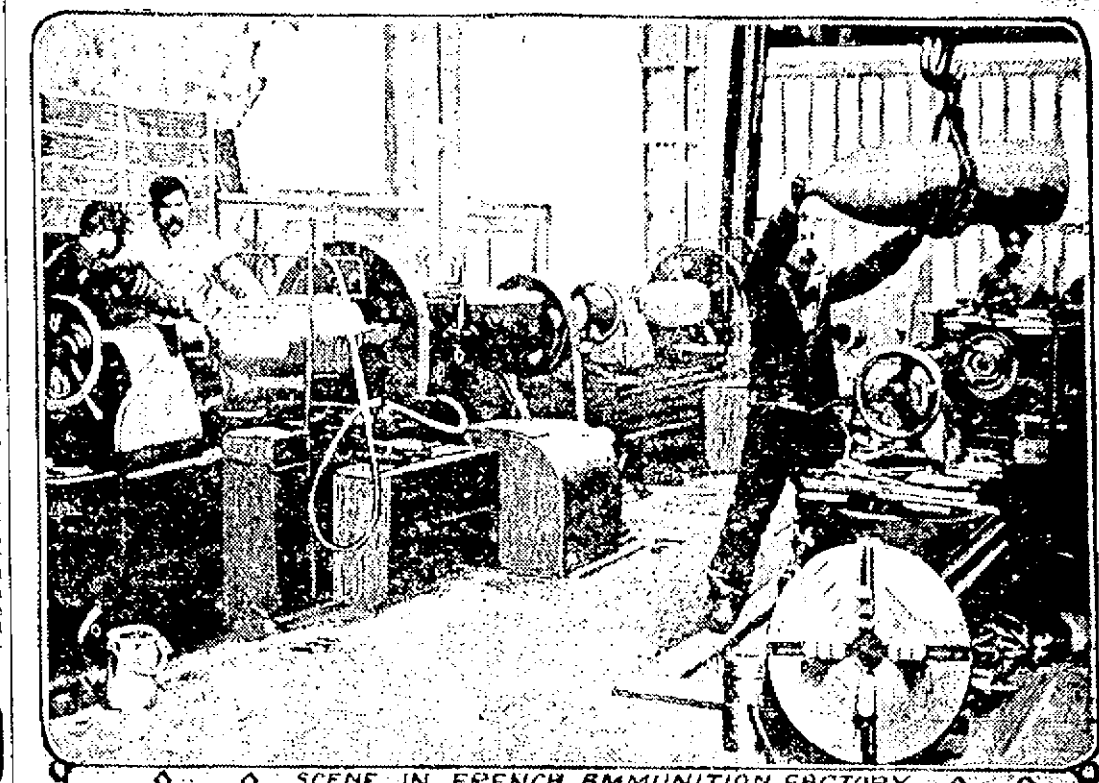

He said that the greatest single menace to the advancement of the Crow is their dancing. They get together for the dance every so often. The Crows do it rather more, he thought, than some others of the tribes. And when the dancing begins unspeakable sins are committed, he said.

One of the pictures shown was of four dancers who had formerly been students at the Carlisle college in Pennsylvania. These young men had all received excellent educations, and yet, once they had returned to the reservation, they sank back to the old Indian ways; all of their education had been forgotten. Illustrating the point, he said that a young Indian girl once obtained an excellent education in a western college, and then went back to her Indian parents for a visit. She had intended working among her kind. But the first night her clothing was destroyed, and she was forced to go into Indian attire again. She was later told that the Great Spirit had never intended her to be as white women are, else the spirit would have made her white. And so she went back to the old tribal customs. The spirit of Christianity, spreading among the Indians, he said, is changing much of that old notion, with the result that those who have become professed Christians are rapidly seeing the light and are not reverting.

AMERICAN TOOLS HELP TO FASHION THE SHELLS MADE FOR FRENCH ARMY

The terrific French artillery attack along the western front was made possible by equally unremitting and intensive effort in the production of projectiles in works which have been transformed by equipment with American machine tools and are working regularly twenty-four hours a day. One of these great establishments, near Paris, makes more than 5000 shells and a number of aeroplane motors a day. The works there produced 600 automobiles annually before the war. In peace times material taken in at one end followed a regular progression until it came out at the other a finished car. The order of operations was different in shell making, so it was necessary to displace and rearrange 500 machines, install many new ones and at the same time find hands to replace a thousand mobilized mechanics. The picture shows a scene in a French ammunition factory.

Federal Officials in New York to Get Full Details of Conspiracy

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—After obtaining full details of the government's information in the cases of the five men charged with conspiracy in plotting to blow up ships carrying supplies to the allies, Charles Warren, assistant to the attorney general, who came here from Washington, left for Boston today.

Mr. Warren conferred with United States District Attorney H. Snowden Marshall. They discussed the confession of Robert Fay who said he was a lieutenant in the German army and confessed to having planned to disable trans-Atlantic steamships, to determine what, if any, action might be taken in Washington in connection with the alleged plot. Mr. Warren has had charge of neutrality cases, and his presence in New York it was said was to ascertain whether Fay's experiments with explosives in and around New York involved a plot of a wider scope.

All the guests were motorcycleists and drove to the church and to the reception at their machines. The couple met first at a motorcycle club run. On the young lady's twenty-first birthday her fiancé gave her a motorcycle.

Mill Agents Refuse to Grant Request of Striking Employees

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 30.—The Nashua Manufacturing Co. today refused to grant the request of striking employees for an increase in wages. The answers were made in reply to a statement filed on Thursday by a committee of strikers which purported to show that the wages paid in Nashua were lower than the scale in other New England mills.

Roscoe S. Milliken of the Nashua Manufacturing Co. announced in his letter that there was nothing to arbitrate and that the plant would be reopened "as soon as conditions would permit and consistent with the safety of our employees." Preference, he added, would be given former employees seeking positions.

BIRD FLAYED BY HALE

Read Excerpts of Bird Speech in 1913-14 Attacking McCall—Demand Bird Quit Alliance

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Charles Sumner Bird, former progressive standard bearer, but more recently affiliated with the campaign of Hon. Samuel W. McCall and the republican party, was handled with varying degrees of severity at the progressive mass meeting in Faneuil hall last night.

About 500 men and women of the dyed-in-the-wool progressive stripe laughed and jeered, applauded and hooted as Chairman Matthew Hale of the progressive state committee apologetically played his late co-worker and read excerpts of Mr. Bird's speeches in 1913 and 1914 in which the latter unflinchingly took Mr. McCall and the entire republican party to task for the principles for which they stood, and then compared those utterances with the present-day declarations of Mr. Bird.

"Here we have Bird of 1915 urging us to endorse McCall and the republican nominees," sarcastically remarked Mr. Hale, "but against the Bird of 1913 we have the Bird of 1913 and 1914 blocking his path."

Chairman Hale, in his introductory remarks, explained that he was sorry that he was about to arraign Mr. Bird, for he was personally fond of him, because he had such absolute faith in him and because he had stood shoulder to shoulder with him in his fight for progressive principles.

He Gave Ovation

Mr. Hale, who was tendered an enthusiastic ovation that continued several minutes, prefaced his remarks by calling attention to the significance of the three words—"Test we forget."

"I am going to try and explain, in the simplest and easiest possible manner, why so few progressives are following Mr. Bird's advice to vote for McCall. Mr. Bird best explains the question himself, and I will submit extracts of the speeches of Charles Sumner Bird in 1912, 1913 and 1914, many of them uttered in this same Faneuil hall," said Chairman Hale.

"The republican argument in favor of us progressives joining the republican fold is that it's a long, hard, hopeless fight for us and we might as well give up now and return to the republican party." He then delved into the probable outcome of the election, using conservative republican estimates as a basis for his contention that Gov. Walsh will be re-elected by a minimum plurality of at least 4000 votes.

"But to get back to Mr. Bird," continued Mr. Hale. "He spends a great amount of time attacking the democratic administration. In September, 1913, in this very hall he publicly stated, as progressive candidate for governor, that he absolutely refused to discuss national issues, but rather would confine himself to state issues."

He quoted excerpt after excerpt of speeches made by Mr. Bird, in which the latter unflinchingly criticized Mr. McCall and the republican party, while the audience alternately jeered, laughed and applauded.

Quoted Many Excerpts

Some of the abstracts of the Bird speeches of the past three years, as read by Mr. Hale, were as follows:

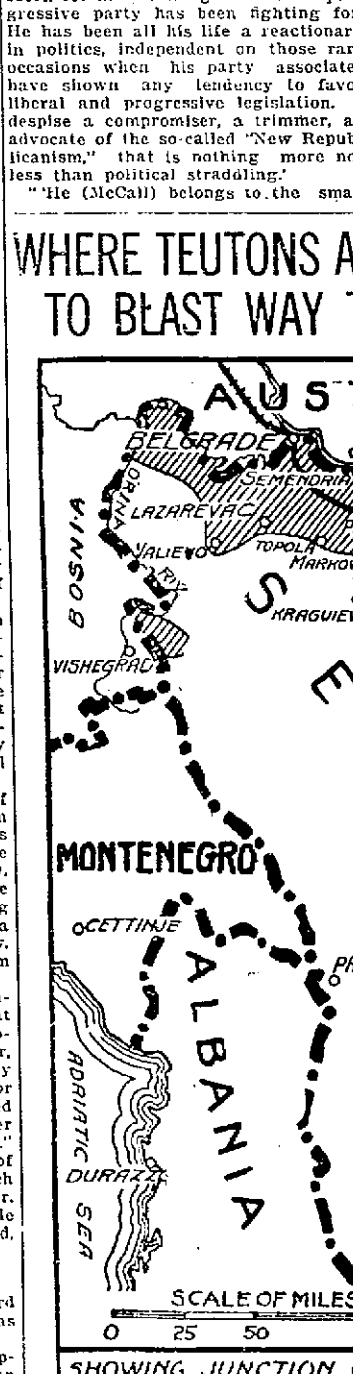

"I have been and am today opposed to any merger with those men or their hirelings who have controlled and still control the political machinery by which the party exists. An alliance with a party controlled by such men as Hallinger, Penrose and men of their type, including even personally honest, high-minded men like Lodge and McCall of Massachusetts, would mean endorsement of the same stand-pat and conservative measures that the people of this country have consigned to the junk heap as unfit for the social, industrial and economic needs of the times."

OVATION TO GOV. WALSH AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Over 5000 Heard Speakers at City Hall—Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald
and Gov. Walsh Heard

One of the largest and most remarkable rallies ever held in this city was that of last night at city hall in the open in the interest of Governor Walsh. At no time from 8 o'clock to midnight was the crowd less than 5000 and there were times when it looked as though 7000 or 8000 persons were packed into space in front of the municipal building. It was a wonderful rally in every respect, and notable not only for numbers but for enthusiasm. For four hours the citizens of Lowell waited cheerfully, and during that period the speeches of local democrats and speakers of the state campaign were received with an enthusiasm that grew as the evening advanced. This spirit of enthusiasm and loyalty culminated in a reception to Governor Walsh which will be remembered by all present. As the governor remarked, it was a wonderful demonstration which showed that he possessed something greater than any office.

POSITION OF SERBIA MORE DESPERATE—NISH IS THREATENED

LONDON, Oct. 30, 11.46 a. m.—The position of Serbia is becoming more desperate daily. Nish is threatened by the Bulgarians, while the Austrians and Germans are gradually opening the way toward the great Serbian arsenal at Kraguyevatz. Rome reports that the Serbian capital has been removed "to a certain point."

Serbia in Retreat

According to the latest official reports from Sofia, the Serbians are in retreat in a westerly direction all along the Bulgarian front. Unofficial despatches state that a Bulgarian officer commanding an advance patrol has dined with the Austro-German staff. The Bulgarians assert that they are in possession of Negotin, Brza Palanka, Zajecar, Knjinevatz, and several villages in the Tisok valley which gives them a strategic position of primary importance. The complete capture of Pirot is claimed by the Bulgarian office at Sofia, which says the Bulgarian troops, after storming the southern fortifications, penetrated the town, where night put an end to the fighting.

French Hold Strumitsa

With the exception of the unofficial report that the French are now firmly in possession of Strumitsa, no news has been received concerning the military movements of the entente allies in the Balkans.

Russians Off For Bulgarian Coast

From Bulgarian sources admissions have been received that the seaports recently bombarded suffered severely. A Bucharest despatch says that Russian troops have set sail from Odessa and Sebastopol for the Bulgarian coast.

Severe Fighting

Along the other fronts severe fighting is reported, without decisive results. An important struggle is in progress on the Austro-Italian line. Vienna reports that Italian attacks were repulsed after a sanguinary struggle.

SEVERE BLOW TO SERBS

Fall of Pirot Leaves Open Road to Nish and Invites Advance of Bulgars Toward Centre

SOFIA, Oct. 27, via London, Oct. 30, 10.50 a. m. (Delayed).—The fall of Pirot (Wednesday) morning was a severe blow to the Serbian army since the reduction of this strong position leaves open the road to Nish and invites a strong Bulgarian advance towards the centre of Old Serbia.

The capture of Pirot followed three days of desperate fighting, ending at nightfall on Oct. 26. During the night the Serbs evacuated the city, sacrificing all their heavy baggage and leaving huge stores of ammunition and war material in the hands of the Bulgars. It is asserted here that the Serbian losses were extremely heavy.

The fall of Pirot and Zajecar, together with the junction made by the Austro-German and Bulgarian forces north of Negotin, has rendered the position of the Serbians, it is considered here, extremely critical. Serbian forces near Mitrovitza and Prishtina are retreating north in the direction of Novigazir with the purpose evidently of joining the main groups of their army in the interior where it is said a state of siege is rapidly approaching since the Serbs are on the verge of being completely cut off.

The capture of Zajecar was of distinct benefit to the Bulgarians, as it was of importance to the Serbians both as a frontier fortress and as a railway junction. Zajecar was defended by a Serbian first line division, supported by about 10,000 men of the third reserve. The Bulgarian forces numbered about two brigades.

The most thorough preparations for defense had been made by the Serbians, whose resistance was determined. Every mountain crest surrounding the fortress was literally covered with barbed wire entanglements and other obstacles. From these positions the Bulgarians poured a terrific fire into the Serbian lines.

Three outlying positions were taken more than a week ago, but the inner line and the southern, eastern and northern works held out until Monday. However, the Bulgarians succeeded in taking heavy artillery to the top of the mountain, whence they were able to direct their fire at the Serbian defenses.

The Serbians were subjected to a preliminary bombardment on Monday and early yesterday. This was followed by a Bulgarian infantry attack of the most desperate character. The Bulgarians were often obliged to climb on all fours up steep slopes to Serbian positions. Now and then the attacking parties were shot down or thrown back but they returned the assault and shortly before noon carried all the Serbian defenses.

The Bulgarian artillery fire was said by Serbian prisoners to have been the worst they had experienced. The shrapnel exploded unerringly at a height of 50 feet above the Serbian positions. This, together with the impetuous rushes of the Bulgarian infantry, compelled the remaining Serbians to surrender.

Most of the prisoners wear civilian clothing, with military overcoats and caps. Others are wearing thin summer uniforms and three or four shirts.

Fighting with artillery, bombs and torpedoes.

"The enemy fired a thousand shells against our left wing causing the collapse of some trenches. Near Ari Burnu and Seddul Bahr two of the enemy's monitors took part in a bombardment but were driven off by our artillery."

Few of them have good shoes. There was no lack, however, of the best French and British war materials. The Serbians are still hoping that reinforcements will reach them.

All accounts agree as to the valor of the Bulgarians. Extraordinary exertions were required to scale the dizzy heights at Zajecar. The Bulgarian infantrymen removed their shoes to obtain a better footing on the slippery rocks. Like untamable beings, they rushed up the slopes. Gaps in their line were filled up instantly from following reserves.

Reaching the summit the infantry did such effective work with the bayonet that the Serbians who were still inclined to fight held up their hands quickly. It is asserted the Bulgarian losses were slight in comparison with the magnitude of the action.

MARCH ON AGUA PRIETA

VILLA TROOPS NOW 18 MILES EAST OF DOUGLAS, ARIZ.—BIG BATTLE EXPECTED

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Oct. 30.—Gen. Francisco Villa's army resumed at daylight its march on Agua Prieta, across the border here proceeded by a cavalry advance guard which reached a point 18 miles east of here.

Prisoners told Gen. P. Elias Calles, Carranza commander of Agua Prieta, that Villa troops were hardly able to fight and that women and children composing the customary camp followers were in a pitiable state.

Two troops of United States cavalry and a machine gun platoon were placed on guard at Slaughter's ranch, today, across the border from Villa's cavalry advance guard.

Villa's main army, which camped last night in the San Bernardino valley about 40 miles southeast, began at daylight its slow journey up the valley.

Five hundred cavalry reached Slaughter's ranch, 15 miles east along the border, where horses were turned loose in the alfalfa fields.

Gen. Calles reported officially today that a detachment of 600 men sent to Caballona yesterday killed twenty men of the Villa advance guard and captured more than a thousand. Fourteen prisoners were brought to Agua Prieta. Carranza officials said the men admitted Villa's army was in bad shape, that the soldiers actually were starving and mirthless and that the condition of women and children in the camp was unfortunate.

STATE BOARD RECOMMENDS EMPLOYEES SEEK CONFERENCE WITH EMPLOYERS

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—The state board of conciliation and arbitration, after an investigation of labor conditions at Worcester affecting three manufacturing plants, recommended in a report made public here today that the employees immediately seek a conference with their respective employers in an effort to reach an amicable settlement. The report was made in the controversies between the Reed-Prentice Co., the Whitcomb-Blaisdell Machine Tool Co., and the Leland-Gifford Co. and their employees.

The contention of the employers that wages and hours of labor are not proper subjects of arbitration as defined in the "declaration of principles" of the National Metal Trades association, was not sustained by the board.

TOKIO, Oct. 30.—The Japanese government has requested the American government to give its support in the representations which are being made at Peking for the purpose of postponing re-establishment of a monarchy in China until the European war is ended.

Japan's policy was decided upon after consultation with Great Britain. The conversations began while Baron Ishii was in London several weeks ago on his way from Paris, where he had served as Japanese ambassador to Tokio, to assume the foreign affairs portfolio.

There is much interest here in the attitude of Germany in regard to the form of China's government. Contradictory reports have been received here concerning the position taken by German diplomats at Peking.

MEXICAN PAPER SUPPRESSED

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 30.—According to advices received by the Carranza representative here, the Mexican Herald of Mexico City, a consistent antagonist to the revolution and was supporter of Huerta, was suppressed last night by constitutionalist authorities.

Through the same channel comes information that prosecution of persons implicated in the assassination of Francisco Madero and Pino Suarez is being continued.

J. P. MORGAN BETTER

SPENT COMFORTABLE NIGHT FOLLOWING OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—J. P. Morgan spent a comfortable night following the operation upon him for appendicitis and his condition today is in every way satisfactory according to a bulletin issued by his physicians. When a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. was asked today regarding reports that the financier's illness was more serious than the physicians' bulletins had indicated, he pointed to Julius Spencer Morgan, Mr. Morgan's son, who was at his desk in the Morgan office. Young Mr. Morgan was smiling and chatting with an associate and his whole appearance indicated that he was in no way seriously concerned over his father's illness.

SHOT AND KILLED FIVE

SAVING BABIES IS WORK OF SOCIETY MEETING IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

WANT to SAVE the BABIES' LIVES

The conservation of the lives of the babies of the nation is the purpose of the American Society For the Study and Prevention of Infant Morbidity, meeting in Philadelphia Nov. 10-12. This year's meeting is the sixth annual convention of the society. The movement to save the lives and guard the health of the babies is a national one in which both physicians and laymen are interested. The outgoing president of the society is Homer Folks of New York, the prominent sociologist. The president for the coming term is Dr. S. M. McNeill of Philadelphia. The secretary of the society is Dr. Philip Van Inzon of New York city.

THE SPELLBINDER

Next Tuesday will be the day on which all state contests and three constitutional amendments, including the question of "votes for women," will be decided, and after that the municipal campaign.

That the close of the state campaign finds the republican party in a shape as evidenced by the reverberations of its leaders upon other parties that have presumed to put up candidates, the progressives and prohibitionists. They have even dragged the heading and thoroughly innocent "Endeavor Society" into the mire.

They deny the progressives and the prohibitionists the right to a place on the ballot simply because they fear that these parties will draw votes from the republican party. They encourage, however, any and all parties to draw votes from the democratic end.

Unable to find any good material which to attack Gov. Walsh's record as chief executive, they have fallen back on each other. They have an afraid to attack the national administration. President Wilson's attitude is not open to attack, they simply state that any other candidate would have done the same, though in their hearts all are fully grateful that the pugnacious day is not in office.

As the republicans claim, there will be no change in the state ticket, the progressive party this year, but also claim that those who desert progressive ranks are to line up with the republicans again, which is a fact, for a good proportion of the former members of the progressive party believe that Gov. Walsh's policy have been nearly in line with those of the progressive party in anything that the G.O.P. has to offer. Hence it looks like another year for Gov. Walsh.

County Contests

Democrats in recording their choice next Tuesday, after casting the state ticket should not forget the county candidates. As the years go the prospects of the democracy in Middlesex county grow brighter. They are already elected a democratic district attorney and register of deeds. They came very near electing a commissioner. This year finds a widespread dissension in the republican ranks and not a few candidates. In the contest for county commissioner, two republican candidates will appear on the ballot. Mr. Dyer, who before the nominations roundly rapped the county. Opposing them is Michael J. Connor, a former member of the board of aldermen of Cambridge, and well known and highly respected agent of the university city.

In the contest for sheriff, Sherburne Walbridge, with Messer disposed of, has been turning his mind to other and happier things. Police Officer John Donovan has been scouring the county and has received most encouraging assurances of support. Officer Donovan is one of the best known and popular men in Middlesex county, and he has friends in every corner who are hustling for him.

County Treasurer Hayden may not have things so much to his liking this year. There is a popular independent publican candidate in the field in the person of DeWitt Clinton Clapp, a democratic end, David A. Keeney, the sanction of both the democratic and progressive parties. There may be something doing in the treasurer contest. The campaign speeches made by Harold D. Wilson before the primaries concerning Mr. Hayden's record in office hold good today as well as before the primaries. Mr. Wilson while defeated made many voters up and take notice.

Local Contests

In the local contests, Representative Burke deserves to win for the campaign. His stump and his knowledge of affairs of state left no doubt in the minds of all who heard him as to his superiority over his republican opponent in statesmanship, eloquence, ability and activity. Of course Senator Kimball assumes that because he wears the label of the republican party every republican voter must support him.

The eighth district will see a close contest between James P. Dunnigan and Senator Marchand. The latter offended the farmers while in office and they have long memories. The great question of taxation is to come up and Mr. Dunnigan, with over 15 years experience as the assessor of the town of Chelmsford is capable to act intelligently on such a matter.

Local Look Good

As election day draws closer the searers of the 14th district express opinion that John W. Brennan will be given the second term in the legislature that was denied him one year ago. Mr. Brennan had a first class record during his first year and the value of that record is enhanced by comparison with that of his successor, Mr. Collins. Last year Mr. Brennan had two votes to contend against, but this year there is no progressive candidate, and the fight is between two citizens and public officials of the town of Dracut. During his term at the legislature Mr. Brennan found time to attend to his local duties as town clerk which made him many friends among the voters of the opposing party. It is said that he has been some time of Rep. Collins's record as a local official since he went to the legislature.

The 19th District

John J. Higgins looks awfully good the election posters of the 19th district. Mr. Higgins, like Mr. Brennan, after serving one year, was defeated a second term. Now, it is believed that he will get the second term. Mr. Higgins, who is a resident of Billerica, having in mind the welfare of the clerical car shops, has given much time to the condition of the Boston & Maine railroad, and is well equipped to consider that matter which must come up in the legislature.

Constitutional Amendments

The questions of taxation and the acquiring of homesteads have taken a back seat among the constitutional amendments as the result of the great interest aroused in the question of the woman's suffrage. The women have certainly made a wonderful campaign. Despite the best meant efforts of the promoters, however, there is still an indifference, if not an opposition, in that going to operate seriously against the success of the measure. Surprising as it may seem, there are many men right here in Lowell who can't honestly tell at this moment how they are going to vote on the question. They don't know. They may favor suffrage or not, at the last moment, as the spirit may move them.

The Emergency Clause

After flitting away nearly a year over the Dummer street extension matter, when the political influences which had been promised the extension put on the severe the municipal council everything else aside and got busy on Dummer street to such an extent that they wanted to apply the emergency clause to the loan order so as to save a few days' time after waiting nearly a year on the matter. Many believe that nothing would be done on this measure but talk, but again was demonstrated when the council rules the roost at city hall, and the influences behind the Dummer street matter threatened the members with vengeance on election day, the council proceeded to rush it through even to the extent of applying the emergency clause, with the intent to save about 10 days on a matter which as Commissioner Duncan said has been before the city council for 30 or 40 years.

Fire Department Undermanned

One of the strangest statements that has emanated from the present administration came from Col. Carmichael a day or more ago when he stated that the firemen would not be permitted to rush the streets during these dusty days because the fire department is present is short of men. He stated that the department is undermanned by 20 men.

Less than two years ago Col. Carmichael, Mayor Murphy and some others made lengthy statements to the newspapers in criticism of former Commissioner Barrett for appointing 10 men to the regular fire department in accordance with the civil service laws. They claimed that Barrett had loaded down the fire department and also claimed that they would not recognize his appointments and would not appropriate money for their pay. Rounding up a party, they appeared before the civil service commission to have the appointments rescinded. In fact they so frightened the men whom Mr. Barrett had appointed that the latter engaged counsel to protect their rights. Former Commissioner Barrett believed that the call firemen should be given the preference in appointments to the regular department, but after the voters expressed their opinion, providing that call firemen after five years' service would be eligible to appointment under the civil service they were not allowed that preference. After this act had been accepted, Mr. Barrett made 10 appointments and Col. Carmichael immediately upon assuming office with the assistance of the mayor, did all in his power to nullify the appointments. The civil service commissioners refused to take back the appointments and the men began their duties and are on duty today. Yet within two years after the colored had informed the public that the fire department was overloaded with personnel, and that they would cheerfully do that little act for the benefit of the public. If I remember rightly, since Col. Carmichael has been at the head of the fire department, the firemen have been called out to wet down the streets in the congested districts during the excessively hot weather and to pump out cinders that have been blown down. They certainly have done this work in the past when there were not as many men on the department as there are at present. If the fire department is short of permanent men it is up to Col. Carmichael and to no one else. The colonel has had charge of the department for over a year and there has been a vacancy in the Ayer City house for over a year. That vacancy existed when the appropriations were made this spring. There has been another vacancy since Roseman Collins was retired and no attempt has been made to fill it. There are eligible list of applicants presently on file and waiting to be appointed. But if the department is in need of men, it is also sorely in need of new apparatus and horses, and the money for apparatus, at least, has been available for months. We'll probably hear of something being done now that election is near. Report both that we may hear of the colonel deciding to take some machines made for another city and rejected.

After Chair-warmers

Jackson Palmer spoke at Liberty square, Thursday night, and again adapted himself to his surroundings for instead of enumerating the number of democrats and republicans holding jobs at city hall, he launched forth upon a broad range of political and said: "If any man is going to vote for me for partisan, race or creed reasons, expecting to get something on those lines, say away with his vote." He further stated that if elected he would give the city a two-fisted, broad, energetic administration under which men with brains would have a chance to hold the positions at city hall which are best of political chair-warmers who have come down from the old form of government. He stated that the chair-warmers now holding office are all partisan appointees of the old time partisan government, and have never been disturbed. He then told a story about a clock at city hall that had stopped, and for two weeks three clerks engaged in a dispute as to whose job it was to wind it, while the clock stood still. He then told the entire story, until finally City Messenger Monahan wound it himself.

Thompson About Due

Perry Thompson is about due for a statement as to whether he will be a candidate for mayor or not. After next Tuesday the public will expect his announcement and is at present awaiting it with deepest interest. With a boom for Thompson launched a long time ago and a long time working in his behalf for a long time, just as the game warm a hitch occurred in the game who have been talking Thompson for a year and in some cases two years are held up by Mr. Thompson himself, who will not announce that he is a candidate, and who incidentally keeps them in the anxious state by declining to state that he will not be a candidate. It is a well known fact that the friends of Mayor Murphy have been trying to get out of political chair-warmers, and there has been much talk of inducements being offered Mr.

Thompson to remain out. The public is patiently waiting to learn whether or not these inducements, if such there be, have had the desired effect.

Horse Drawn Sleuths

A burglary was reported to the police on Thursday, and those who reported it tell the story that word was sent to the police station in ample time to catch the burglars if the new police automobile purchased, we were led to believe, for just such purposes, had been sent. But it seems that the horse who sent in the report watched the burglar leisurely make his escape while waiting for the police to arrive, and after he had gotten away two inspectors drove up to the scene of the break in a carriage drawn by a slow-going horse. When the new seven-seated touring car of the police department was proposed eloquent word pictures were painted of the great need for it to prevent such calls for help in the future. Here was a case in which, according to those who claim to know, the burglar might have been easily apprehended, with a little speed, but the old-fashioned, slow-going horse was used. Needless to state, the news of the break has not been given out to the police court reporters of either of the daily newspapers.

Calls Them Fakirs

A man of prominence who is closely associated with some of the biggest business interests in Lowell remarked to some business acquaintances yesterday: "The trouble at city hall is that we have the biggest crowd of fakirs there at the present time that we have ever had." The amusing part of the remark is that the same gentleman was quite enthusiastic over the election of those fakirs, he calls them, two years ago. But he isn't the only man that was deceived by campaign talk and promises.

FIRE VICTIMS ARE BURIED

Cardinal O'Connell Officiates at Funeral of Peabody Children Who Perished in School Fire

PEABODY, Oct. 30—This busy manufacturing town hushed its machinery today to pay a silent tribute to the memory of the 21 little girls who lost their lives in the fire which destroyed the St. John's parochial school on Thursday. The parents of three of the children elected to have their little ones buried in private, but to the 18 others was accorded the solemn homage of a public mass at St. John's Roman Catholic church.

Early in the day thousands of residents made ready to join the procession to the church. Rev. Nicholas J. Murphy, pastor of the church, although crushed almost to prostration under the weight of the calamity which befell the school over which he had spiritual direction, was ready to officiate at the services. The church could not hold all who wished to attend. The supply of carriages in the town was exhausted and many citizens gave the use of their automobiles to make room for the long line of mourners.

All stores and factories were closed an hour before the time for the funeral and it was arranged that they should not be reopened until the services had been concluded.

Cardinal O'Connell Spoke

Cardinal O'Connell, accompanied by the Rt. Rev. J. P. Copping, arrived at the church shortly before the mass began. They occupied seats within the altar rail.

At the conclusion of the mass, Cardinal O'Connell delivered the sermon and closed by pronouncing absolution. Sixteen separate services were held in the cemetery, one body being sent to Malden for burial. Each coffin was followed by its own procession of mourners.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

cars to attend the funeral while many prominent citizens from Brookline and Sharon, where the deceased had formerly labored, were in attendance. Large delegations from Lexington representing Lexington council, 94, Knights of Columbus; Division 34, A.O.U., the Holy Name society of St. Bridget's church, the Ladies' sodality of the same church and the Daughters of Isabella occupied seats in the center aisle.

Solemn Requiem Mass

statutory funeral march the long line of vested prelates and clergymen filed upon the altar. His Grace, Bishop Anderson, of Dorchester, occupied a throne on the gospel side of the altar and was attended by Monsignor William O'Brien of this city and Monsignor M. J. Splaine, of Roxbury, as chaplains. Bishop Da Silva, of this city was also in attendance and his chaplains were Rev. Owen P. McGaid, O.M.I., and Rev. D. A. Sullivan, O.M.I. Solemn high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, assisted by Rev. Daniel Cronin, of Concord, as deacon, Rev. David Murphy, of North Billerica, as sub-deacon and Rev. Thomas J. McCormick, of Norwood, as master of ceremonies. Rev. Charles A. Ulrich, of Orient Heights, East Boston, was censor-bearer and the acolytes were the two curates of the deceased at St. Bridget's church, Rev. Conrad J. Quirbach and Rev. E. Joseph Burke.

The music of the mass was particularly impressive and was sung by a choir of priests consisting of Rev. M. J. Scannell, of the Cathedral, Boston, director, and Rev. John J. Burns, of South Boston, formerly of this city; Rev. Denis O'Brien, of Cambridge, also a former Lowell resident; Rev. Fr. Conroy, of the Cathedral, Boston; Rev. Richard Spillane, of Watertown; Rev. William Casey, of Malden; J. Frank Driscoll, organist at the Cathedral, Boston, presided at the organ. The choir sang the Kyrie from Terry's requiem mass; the Introit and Gradual from Carey's requiem while the "Dies Irae" and the remainder of the mass were from the old Gregorian chant. At the final absolution Turner's "Libera" was sung. The solo parts were sustained by Rev. John J. Burns. After the service, and while the body was taken from the church, a male choir of laymen consisting of Prof. P. P. Haggerty, Messrs. John J. Dalton, James E. Donnelly, Andrew A. McCarthy and Charles P. Smith, sang "De Profundis," Mr. Dalton sustaining the solos.

Bishop Anderson's Remarks

His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell, a close personal friend of the deceased, in sending his condolences to the family had announced his intention of being present at the funeral services but the unfortunate disaster at Peabody had compelled him to absent himself and he sent as his personal representative, Bishop Anderson. At the close of the mass Bishop Anderson addressed the congregation and spoke in part as follows:

"His Eminence, the Cardinal was particularly desirous to be present at this service to pay his tribute of love and respect to the deceased, but owing to the terrible calamity that so suddenly and so unexpectedly has befallen the Catholic people of the neighboring city of Peabody his duty as head of the church called him to that grief-stricken community to extend spiritual consolation to the heart-broken parents of the young victims of the disaster. He desired to come here not only as the head of the church, as a mark of recognition of the faithful service rendered by the deceased in his holy calling, but because of the intimate personal relations which he had enjoyed since boyhood's days with the deceased and the members of his family.

"Fr. Costello, although called to his reward while yet in the prime of life had accomplished much good among his fellowmen. His labors having been principally in the sparsely-settled districts of the archdiocese, he had been untiring in his work for Mother Church. In the district of Sharon he had won many souls, while by his kindly disposition he carried happiness to all among whom he labored. His faithful and zealous labors were recognized by his superior who appointed him to a parish of greater size and responsibility, confident that in this field he would achieve even greater results, but soon after his appointment a fatal illness came upon him and from the moment that his nature became apparent to him he was thoroughly resigned to the will of God, spending his closing days in close communion with his Maker he passed away peacefully and happily, a beautiful death fittingly closing a life well spent in the service of his God and his fellow-man. His death should cause us to reflect rather than to grieve, for death must come to us all and in contemplating Fr. Costello's death we should review his exemplary life, and so direct our thoughts and prayers, our lives, that when the final summons comes it will find us like him whom today we mourn, fully prepared for a life of eternal happiness."

After the church service the casket was replaced in the hearse and the funeral cortege proceeded to the Catholic cemetery where at the family lot the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Tighe, O.M.I., assisted by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O.M.I., and the visiting clergymen. The choir of priests sang the office for the dead at the graveside following the usual committal ceremony.

The honorary pall-bearers were Rev. John J. Fleming, S.J., of Holy Cross college, Worcester; Rev. James Stanton, Stoughton; Rev. M. T. McManus, Brookline; Rev. James O'Rourke, South Boston; Rev. James Landrigan, Weymouth; Rev. E. Joseph Burke, Lexington. The active bearers were Dr. J. H. Kane, Lexington, and Messrs. H. D. Lyons, Lexington; T. F. Quinn, Sharon; J. W. McGrath, Sharon; William H. McManus, Brookline and Jos. W. Cook, Brookline. The ushers at the house and church were: Messrs. James P. Owens and Charles D. Maron of Lowell; Charles Vaughn and Jeremiah McCarthy of Lexington, and Frank O'Hearn of Brookline. The funeral arrangements and interment were under the direction of James F. O'Donnell & Sons.

Will Flush Streets

FIREMEN WILL GLADLY DO THAT WORK IF PERMITTED

AN OBVIOUSLY UNFAIR STATEMENT prejudicial to the firemen's ONE-DAY-OFF-IN-FIVE proposition appeared in Friday's Courier-Citizen as follows:

"Just a bit of alacrity on the part of the firemen with regard to the project for flushing the main paved streets for the next few weeks would have been worth more than several hundred dollars' worth of paid advertising in advocacy of that blessed one-day-off-in-five. Conversely, the present reputed unwillingness of the firemen to help in the flushing project is almost certain to militate against the success of this year's referendum."

No firemen have expressed unwillingness to flush the streets, and no firemen have any authority in the matter.

THE FIREMEN ARE WILLING TO FLUSH THE STREETS NOW, AS THEY HAVE DONE IN THE PAST, and as they have pumped out cellars in the past.

The firemen, willingly or unwillingly, can do only what the fire commissioner orders them to do; and cannot do what the fire commissioner orders not to be done.

The question of alacrity or willingness does not enter into the proposition on the part of the firemen. IF THE FIRE COMMISSIONER WILL PERMIT THEM, THE FIREMEN WILL GLADLY FLUSH THE STREETS, BUT THEY CANNOT DO IT WITHOUT HIS AUTHORITY.

The Lowell firemen have never been found wanting when they could be of service to the public.

EXECUTOR'S SALE

OF A LOT OF LAND CONTAINING ABOUT 10,820 SQUARE FEET, MORE OR LESS, SITUATED IN MIDDLESEX STREET, NEXT TO PROPERTY NUMBERED 895.

On Next Friday, November 5th, 1915, at 3 P. M.

I have instructed the auctioneer to sell at absolute auction sale, to the highest bona fide bidder, this certain lot of land containing about 10,820 square feet, with a frontage on Middlesex street of 50 feet, located about opposite Queen street.

This lot is situated within close proximity of numerous shops and factories and would make a splendid spot upon which to erect either a business block or an apartment house, as a modern property in this section is much sought. It is within one minute's walk of the Middlesex street and North Chelmsford electric car line.

Remember, the lot is to be sold to whomsoever will bid the most.

Terms: $100 must be deposited with the auctioneer just as soon as the lot is struck off.

By order of, JESSE J. SMITH,
Executor of the will of Mary S. Robinson.

Commissioner's Sale at Public Auction

OF THE WARREN FOX ESTATE, IN TWO SEPARATE PARCELS, SITUATED AT NOS. 369-371-373 BRIDGE STREET, AND NOS. 14-16 SECOND STREET, CENTRALVILLE.

On Monday, the Eighth Day of November, 1915, Commencing Promptly at 3 O'Clock P. M.

WITH THE BRIDGE ST. PROPERTY AND FOLLOWING IMMEDIATELY WITH THE BLOCK ON SECOND ST.

By virtue of an order issued by the Probate Court, I have instructed the auctioneer to sell to whomsoever will bid the most at absolute auction sale, in two parcels, this extraordinary and extremely well situated estate. The properties comprise a four-story gravel-roofed block containing 12 tenements and two stores at Nos. 369-371-373 Bridge street, and an eight-tenement four-story structure at Nos. 14-16 Second street.

THE FIRST PARCEL—The Bridge street block has 12 tenements and two stores; nine tenements have three rooms, and three tenements have four rooms each, with separate toilets, gas, woodshed for coal and wood on each floor, ash chutes directly to the basement, plentiful supply of closet room, large windows and the rooms being of good size and high posted give the tenant plenty of light and air.

The flats are conveniently laid out, the plan of the buildings making it easy for the tenants to care for their homes. The building is high-studded, heavily timbered and one of the best constructed blocks in the city.

The stores are large, with good show windows and have been occupied by the present tenants for a great many years. The store at No. 369 Bridge street is rented to George H. Miller, a manufacturing confectioner, who has established a lucrative business. The other store at No. 373 is conducted by J. M. Kingsbury, the well known meat and provision dealer, who has been on these premises for 25 years.

The property is all rented and pays an income of $155.50 per month, the tenants ranging in price from $8 per month to $11. The total yearly rental of the premises is $1866.

The building is in extra good repair, and but for a little painting could be classed as in A-1 condition. It is equipped with fire escapes.

The lot has a total area of 3330 square feet, more or less with a frontage on Bridge street of 50 feet.

Its location on the right side of the street, directly opposite West Third street, in the very heart of Centralville's business district, demands the attention of all persons interested and desiring business realty for investment.

Terms of first parcel—$500 must be deposited with the auctioneer just as soon as the property is struck off.

THE SECOND PARCEL—A four story frame block containing 8 tenements with 3 rooms, pantry, gas, and separate toilet to each, in fair repair. The lot has a total area of 3669 square feet more or less with a frontage on Second street of 50 feet.

The location is excellent for property of this description being just around the corner from the main thoroughfare, Bridge street; and with a little attention can be made a most profitable investment, when entirely rented it shows an income of $1618 per year, or a yearly rental of $341.56. The flats are nicely laid out, each having 3 rooms all on one floor, are supplied with coal and wood sheds, and separate toilets.

This is an exceptional property for anyone to own who can attend to its needs personally, as its location will warrant a steady and continuous rental.

Terms: $500 must be deposited with the auctioneer just as soon as the property is struck off, other terms made known at the sale.

INVESTORS AND SPECULATORS, ATTENTION

This sale presents an unusual opportunity, when you consider a business property, all rented to extraordinarily good tenants, property in good physical condition, within 4 minutes' walk of the very center of Lowell, (Merri-mack Square), on a business street, with up-to-date property around it, directly on two electric car lines, within easy walking distance of the very largest of Lowell's manufacturing industries, close to churches, schools, theatres, stores, etc., being offered at absolute bona fide auction sale, to whomsoever will bid the most and comply with the terms of sale.

ATTEND the sale as property with the income yielding quality, that will pay the revenue on the money invested that this shows is seldom if ever sold at public competition.

By order of, CHARLES A. RICHARDSON,
Commissioner.
